Greek Warships Seized as Revolt Sweeps Nation; Report King Quits

Paris, Sept. 27.—A Havas dispatch from Athens says: "The insurrectionists, who have nine destroyers and naval airplanes, besides the warships Kilkis and Lemnos, has landed troops at Cape Sunion (on the peninsula southeast of Athens).

"General Papoulas has been sent to try to stop them. Martial law has been proclaimed. General Koutzis induced the garrison here to adhere to the revolutionary movement."

London, Sept. 27 (By the Associated Press.—Greece is in the grip of a revolutionary movement. King Constantine is reported to have abdicated. At least part of the navy has gone against the government and several warships and transports manned by revolutionists are believed to be advancing on the capital from the Aegean Islands, where the revolt originated.

Direct advices from Athens are lacking, indicating that censorship is in effect, but the report of Constantine's abdication has persisted since the last dispatch, telling of the Cabinet's resignation and the approach of a crisis, was received.

The revolutionary movement is headed by an officer named Gonatas, variously described as a general and a colonel, who organized the soldiers

TWO HUB BROKERS QUIT

Predict the Downfall of Other Firms as Result of Losing of Ticker Service

Two Boston brokerage houses have ceased operations and several others are expected to follow as a direct result of losing their "ticker" service with the New York Stock Exchange.

The firms which have already closed their doors are the John R. Keilty & Co., No. 68 Devonshire street, and the Edward Brady & Co., No. 45 Devonshire street.

In both instances it is admitted that the loss of the New York ticker service, which was cancelled last week, is the cause of the failures.

In both of these instances receivers will be appointed to wind up the affairs.

At the Brady office it was confidently asserted today that "there will be a lot of other firms in Boston closing up soon."

SIX WERE KILLED BY "GROUND HAZE"

Mineola, L. I., Sept. 27.—A ground haze which confused the pilot as to altitude at which he was flying has been fixed as the basic cause of the airplane disaster last Saturday, which caused the death of six men. Testimony taken by the board of officers investigating the crash, it was learned, has exonerated First Lieutenant Raymond E. Davis, the pilot, from responsibility for the tragedy.

Four gold teeth were taken, it is charged.

HOLD CEMETERY MAN FOR GRAVE VIOLATION

Officials of the Hebrew Burial Association, Inc., of Boston, appeared in Judge Bruce's court in Malden today to testify against Thatcher K. Shaw of No. 90 Fuller street, Everett, a grave-digger.

The charge against Shaw, who is an employe of the burial association, is that he dug up one of the graves in the Jewish cemetery on Fuller street, and disinterred the body of Hyman Stein, which had been buried there for six months.

In the presence of William Cooper, a special officer of the Everett police, Shaw took a shovel and cracked open the skull of the corpse. Later Cooper reported the matter to the officers of the burial association who opened up the grave and found that not only had the skull been broken, but several teeth had been taken from the jaw. Four gold teeth were among those taken, it is charged.

Cooper said that Shaw, who is married and has three children, has been drinking heavily of late, and was under the influence of liquor at the time of the alleged tampering with the Stein grave.

In court Shaw asked for a continuance, which was granted to October 17. He was held in bail of $500.

CAPTAINS CLEARED OF BLAME

Says Patrolmen "Reached," but "Victims" Had Only Selves to Blame

Until the recent shake-up, the gambling fraternity of Boston was enjoying a measure of immunity through bribery of police officials.

The gamblers' fixers did not reach police captains. But they were able to buy underlings in various stations—"coppers" who had enough political pull to exercise some influence.

This was disclosed in the wholesale shifting of police captains recently. The shakeup broke up the "entente cordiale" between the "wrong" police and the gamblers and started the war that sent gamblers scurrying from their favorite haunts to less warm territory.

KEMAL EVADES DEMAND TO WITHDRAW

London, Sept. 27 (By the Associated Press).—Mustapha Kemal Pasha, replying to General Harington's ultimatum, evades the question of the withdrawal of the Turkish troops, as demanded, says a Reuter dispatch from Constantinople, but declares that Kemal had no knowledge of a neutral zone. He complains of the action of the British in destroying buildings and roads and concludes by saying he concurs with the allies in the desire to avoid incidents.

OPENS DEFENCE FOR CREASY IN MURDER TRIAL

Filene's Automatic Bargain BASEMENT

Selling $115 coats and $9 coats side by side!

Probably Filene's Automatic Basement is the only store in the world where this would happen. It takes a store with character all its own to attract the well-to-do who can pay $115 and at the same time attract those who choose to pay $9.

Its appeal is as universal as the desire to get a "real bargain." Women who paid $115 saved proportionately as much as those who bought for $9. And both saved handsomely.

Whatever your purse, whatever your means, you will meet others of the same walk in life in Filene's Basement. Here you find many minds, but one thought—BARGAINS.

First low prices or we lose, in accordance with our automatic reduction: ¼ after 12 selling days, ½ after 18 selling days, ¾ after 24 selling days; goods given away after 30 selling days.

Commissioner Wilson and Superintendent Crowley took steps to break up the ring. Subsequently the gamblers found it convenient to mark time, and now the dissolution of the gambling clique seems to be at hand, thanks to the efforts of Wilson, Crowley and their lieutenants.

The expose of the Paul Downey trimmings by local gamblers is a symptom of the war.

One of the most active of the gamblers revealed this situation today to a Boston American reporter. He said:

ABSOLVES CAPTAINS.

"Of course we came through, though I don't claim that we sent over anything to the captains themselves. In my opinion, take it for what it is worth, they were shifted because they were unable to make their men drive us off our stands. This doesn't apply to the districts where the captains were given promotions.

"There was just one way for the 'bulls' to get us. The only charge they could bring against us was loitering on the corners. The fellows who bet with us couldn't holler 'cop,' because they would have to show themselves up, and were just as liable to fine or imprisonment as we were. Often they sent stools to us to place bets, but we always know who we're putting on the tab.

"But there was one way, and it was this way that they finally got us. Two women, well known and respectable, went to police headquarters and complained that their husbands were not supporting them properly, the reason being that the husbands were betting on the horses. The women had the tabs, names and everything else. Then the 'bulls' had something definite to work on. The big shake-up followed.

LOCATES BOOKIES.

"Now, you know, there were three places down here where you could find a man to place your bets with. Of course there were other places in the same district but these three were the big gathering places. One was at Washington and Essex streets, generally a little way down Essex street. Another was downstairs and in the doorway of the bowling alley half way between Essex and Beach streets, on Washington. Another was at Washington and Avery streets. All these places, as you know well enough, are in the precinct of Station 4. Well, the skipper of Station 4 was one of those shifted.

"Now, mind you, I'm not saying that that skipper got any graft at all, but I do know some of his men did, though everybody in authority will deny it.

"Now let's go downtown a little. There were two big meeting places there. One was in the alley back of Young's Hotel and in Young's poolroom. The other was just outside the Quincy House and across the street. Both these places are in Station 2 district. The skipper of Station 2 got shifted also. Again, I want you to make it strong that I'm not bringing any charge of graft against either of these captains. But police headquarters knew that somebody in those two precincts was wrong, and it is my opinion that this is mainly what caused the shift.

THEY MOVED OFTEN.

"Take the mob that was grabbed at No. 5 Park square. It was under the name of the Gem Advertising Company then. But don't forget that this same outfit operated from a nice office in the Winthrop Building, between Water street and Spring Lane, for a long time, and they prospered. This was on Station 2.

Then they were given the office to find another hide-out. They did. They went up on Washington street just below the Langham Hotel. This was on Station 5. They didn't last here long enough to pay the rent. Then they moved down to Park square, where they were operating in big style until the blow-off came.

"But I will say this for the mob. As far as I know, and I know them very well, they always gambled on the square. If this Downey kid was foolish enough to lay money on skates that didn't have a chance to be in the money, that's nobody's fault but his own. I know oodles of guys around town that are attracted by long shots and of course lose money playing them.

"But it is legitimate enough to take their money. Nobody's cheating them but themselves. The papers are full of articles to the effect that the Park square mob 'cleaned' this Downey with the 'bicks' and the 'tops' when he did happen to make a lick on the horses. I don't believe this at all. There was no need for those fellows to put in the cheating dice on him.

"DOWNEY TOOK BIG CHANCES."

"The same guy that plays long shots is the fellow that thinks he can make the fourth pass shooting dice; the guy that don't know that the big money winners are the men who play the 'dont's.' I know one of the most successful dice shooters in the country who never handles the dice himself at all. He always fades.

"Yes, if the police investigation amounts to anything besides giving us the gate the 'bulls' will all be whitewashed and be declared as clean as Annette Kellermann after a dive. If any of us is compelled to testify, his testimony will be discredited as that of a disgruntled gambler sore on the cops. But don't forget that those shifts point out something to anybody who is in the know."

Gamblers' Gang Used Girls as Bait

By HARRY A. BENWELL.

Beautiful women, surrounded by luxurious furnishings in expensive Back Bay apartments, were used as lures by the gang that fleeced Paul Downey, charged with the larceny of $127,000 from the Federal Trust.

When the prospective victims, who included prominent Boston business men, refused to bite at the bait offered in the fake poolroom at No. 5 Park square, the "vamps" were called in and seldom failed to land the "fish."

LEADER GREW WEALTHY.

Further revelations disclosed the fact that Humphrey Lane and Robert L. Finn were but minor figures in the gang, whose operations were carefully planned and the "comeons" hand picked.

The real head of the band, and the man who supplied the money with which to run the poolroom and toll "suckers," was a well-known gambler who has fled to New York.

This man is said to have engineered the taking of a number of brokers, bank and brokerage clerks, within the past few years, and to have become wealthy by his illicit dealings.

BROKER LOST $75,000.

One prominent victim of the gang, it was learned, was a State street broker who was "taken" to the extent of $75,000, in much the same manner as was Downey.

On arrival at the apartment he was offered liquor in large quantities, was treated as an honored guest, and at the end of his visit was told there was nothing to pay.

However, before farewells were said, the young man was urged to call again and bring a friend. He did so, and selected a man who was well provided with funds.

The young woman, with whom was a girl friend, expressed much pleasure at the reappearance of the clerk, and again proffered stimulant in the form of choice whiskey.

After a time conversation lagged, and it was then the clerk noticed a pair of dice on the table. He picked them up carelessly and on holding them to the light discovered they were loaded with mercury.

He made no mention of his discovery, however, and when the hostess suggested that she be initiated into the mysteries of a dice game, offered no objections. Another pair of dice was then produced to play with.

The first stake was for twenty-five cents, but gradually this was increased as the girl apparently became more proficient. Finally she produced a large roll of bills and offered to "shoot" $20. The clerk covered her money and then noticed that she had palmed the "tops," or loaded dice.

WAS CLEVER TRICKSTER.

She made her point, and again shot $20, and was again "faded," but the second victory was too much for the guest. He excused himself on the ground of a previous engagement, and with his friend beat a hasty retreat. The young woman was an exceedingly clever dice handler, and had switched to the loaded pair so smoothly that it would not have been noticed by anyone not on the watch for such a happening.

The same clerk kas taken to the extent of $7,500 by the gang, after he had been permitted to win twice on bets, and then relieved of his winnings in a dice game. His position in the bucketshop gave him access to the funds, and he became a "gambling fool," in the vernacular of the underworld.

One of the gang would telephone the clerk that he had a good tip and would "lay the money off," for a small commission. This meant that he intended placing the bet somewhere else, rather than handle it himself.

This continued some time until eventually it was decided to let the "sucker" win. He was given a tip on a good horse and won $6,000. Then he was enticed into a dice game from which he emerged a loser to the extent of $4,000.

The house then owed him $2,000, but before he could collect he was induced to make another bet, which left him in debt to the extent of an equal sum.

This was continued until he owed $7,500, which sum he took from the coffers of the firm by whom he was employed. The shortage was discovered and the young man only escaped a prison sentence because his family made restitution.

FIND MYSTERY BOX.

A mystery box, believed to have contained Downey's cache, was today discovered to be in the safety deposit box of Robert L. Finn, found in the Exchange Trust Company.

According to Captain Ainsley C. Armstrong of the Bureau of Criminal Investigation, the box was located by him on the day of Downey's arrest, and was found to contain $4,000 in cash.

What Is History?
Bad Day for Kings
Harvard—Ask John D.
A Cigarette Pun

—By Arthur Brisbane—

"What is truth?"

"Pilate asked the question and would not wait for an answer."

What is truth in history. Nobody knows. We know as little about this late war and about our own times as a fly crawling over the front of an office building in this city knows about the whole city. We are too close to it to see it.

This writer suggested that the duty of the whole civilized world is to keep Turks and other Asiatics out of Europe. Here's Mr. M. H. Nickerson writing from No. 24 White street, East Boston, Mass., pointing out that the Greeks were conquerors while heathen, and amounted to nothing after they became Christians.

He says the Christians are as bad as the Turks when it comes to massacres, that they kill their own religious brothers and the Turks do not.

Further, he says that Charles Martel, or Charles the Hammer, was a German, and beat the Asiatic Saracens with German soldiers. That will surprise little French boys. Here's the interesting quotation from Mr. Nickerson's letter:

"The Christians also believe in fire and sword as divine instruments. Witness the World War. A Christian was then slaying his brother in Christ. The Moslem never murders wholesale those of the faith and of the blood of Ishmael, Abraham's hopeless offspring. No massacre stains his annals like that of St. Bartholomew. He taught Europe in the Dark Ages medicine, astronomy and mathematics. Think of those words: Chemistry, almanac and algebra." (They are all Arabic words.—Ed.)

"When the Seljuks took Constantinople, a Christian quarrel about the proper shape of the cross led to the conquest of the fairest portion of heathen Europe.

"While Greece was heathen, she conquered Asia. Now she is Christian the heathen can handle her and humble all Europe.

"England levied the Asiatics when she wanted their help in a war against the first Christian power in the world. She brought into Europe 70,000 Sikhs to assist at the late carnival of murder, and France capped the horror by deluging with black head-hunters the land of science and song, of Luther and Goethe, to say nothing of Charles Martel, who saved Europe at Tours. His army was German, not French—Franks of the lower Rhine clean up to Frankfurt-Am-Main. The Hungarians were themselves an Asiatic horde, the Hiung-Nu of Chinese history, and akin to the Turks. Huhamad, entering Constantinople, destroyed the images on the church in strict obedience to the Jewish code. See the Ten Commandments."

Kemal Pasha evidently knows an opportunity when he sees it. He reminds you of Alexander after he had frightened the Persian ruler into a humble frame of mind. Darius offered Alexander his daughter in marriage and half his realm. Alexander replied:

"When you write to me, address me as the ruler of Asia."

Kemal Pasha, who seems to have frightened all of Western Europe, is inclined to write to the Europeans in the same tone.

But he may change his mind. The United States, officially and fortunately, has declared in favor of England's attitude on the Dardanelles. Kemal may decide to take Thrace and other things offered instead of a beating.

It is a bad time for Kings once more. Kemal notifies the Sultan that he won't do as a ruler, and he, Kemal, appoints a governor for the City of Constantinople—

PRODUCERS TO ASK MORE

Distributors Expect to Pass Advance Along to Boston Consumers

Milk is expected to go up 1 cent a quart in Greater Boston beginning October 1.

This prediction was made this afternoon by leading milk distributors as a result of the expected increase in the wholesale price.

MEET TOMORROW.

Leaders of the New England Milk Producers' Association have been discussing raising the wholesale price. They will reach a decision at a meeting tomorrow.

The opinion was expressed by prominent dairymen and officials of the producers organization that there is "little hope of avoiding the charging of an extra cent a quart to the dealer."

Notice has been given by John Whiting, representing the Whiting milk interests, which includes all the companies of that name; the Brigham Milk Company, and the Elm Farm Milk Company, that if the association advances its price, the Whiting concerns will be obliged to pass the boost along to the customer.

BIG COMPANIES LEAD.

In times past virtually all distributors have followed the lead of the Whiting and Hood Companies.

The producers seek to justify their proposed action by the assertion that the cows are unable to feed in the pastures during the Fall and Winter and so they must get more money to cover the cost of grain and fodder.

WEST BRIDGE MAY GET LIGHT AT LAST

When the West Boston bridge was designed the architect planned to light the lower end of the Charles River Basin with powerful electric lights atop its tall towers. Today Clarence W. Barron, publisher of the News Bureau, reminded Mayor Curley that the plans have never been carried out. The Mayor at once asked the Bridge Department to give him estimates on the cost.

RATIFY MEXICAN FINANCIAL PACT

Mexico City, Sept. 27.—The joint committee appointed by the Senate to examine the financial agreement signed by Secretary De La Huerta and the international bankers in New York has reported favorably and in a lengthy resolution recommends its ratification by the upper house without modification.

SPEAKERS CLASH AT FANEUIL

A tiff between Chairman Louis A. Coolidge and Wendell P. Thore marred an otherwise decorous meeting in Faneuil Hall today. The gathering was part of Boston's observance of the 200th anniversary of the birth of Samuel Adams, Revolutionary War hero and leader.

Coolidge had introduced Mayor Curley as the principal speaker of the meeting when he was interrupted by Thore, who said he had the floor and wished to make some remarks.

Pounding his gavel, Coolidge declared that Mayor Curley had the floor, and he called upon Thore to "pipe down."

Thore then turned his glance upon the Mayor, and yelled:

"In the name of democracy, and in the name of Samuel Adams, whose birthday we are here to honor, I call upon you, Mr. Mayor, to defend the right of public debate."

Mayor Curley seemed willing to yield the floor to Thore, but Coolidge insisted that the Mayor begin his address forthwith, which was done. Mr. Curley spoke on the soldiers' bonus, and was heartily cheered.

There were numerous meetings during the day.

Boston observed today the 200th anniversary of the birth of Samuel Adams, Revolutionary hero and leader.

The first event on the program was a civic and military parade which started at 10:30 on Federal street and proceeded through to Milk to Post Office square to Congress street to the Old State House, where there were brief exercises and thence to Faneuil Hall.

The parade was reviewed at City Hall by Mayor Curley who was accompanied by General John H. Dunn, Joseph Smith, secretary of the Industrial Bureau, and Fred Kneeland, superintendent of public buildings.

DOYLE IS LEADER.

There were between 1,500 and 2,000 marchers in line representing various military and patriotic organizations. William H. Doyle, commander of Massachusetts Department of the American Legion, was the chief marshal.

Senator Lodge was the chief speaker at the meeting in the Council Chamber in the Old State House. Other persons of prominence from all the New England States made brief addresses.

For the first time in 100 years a town meeting was conducted in Faneuil Hall in the same manner as in the days of Samuel Adams. A number of prominent persons took part in the debate on the various resolutions offered.

AT THE OLD SOUTH

There were services in Old South Meeting House. Judge Michael G. Murray delivered the memorial address. Rev. George A. Gordon, pastor of Old South Church, gave the invocation.

A mass meeting is scheduled for 8:15 tonight at Symphony Hall. Louis A. Coolidge will be chairman. The speakers will include Major-General Edwards, Governor Baxter of Maine, and Frank L. Greene, Republican candidate for United States Senator of New Hampshire.

TWO HELD FOR TAILOR SHOP BREAK

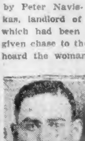
Mrs. Augusta Stankey of No. 543 First street, South Boston, came racing from an alley, screaming for help.

"Burglars up to Russells," she gasped.

Officer Bacher drew his gun. Two forms sped away in the darkness. Three blocks away he "collared" Coleman O'Toole, twenty-two, of No. 206 F street, South Boston, and Patrick J. Cook, thirty-one, of No. 8 Dresser street, South Boston.

Coleman O'Toole.

The flight of the two men had been interrupted by Peter Naviskas, landlord of the building which had been entered, who had given chase to the fugitive when he heard the woman's cries. Naviska had caught up with the two men and feigning that he held a gun in his hand he threatened to shoot if the men did not stop. He held them in this way until the arrival of the policeman.



Peter Naviskas.

Mrs. Stankey told the police that she was leaving the home of her daughter, Mrs. J. E. York, of No. 395 F street, when she stumbled over one of the men, who was on guard outside, while his pal was rifling the tailor shop of Augustas Russell, which was in the basement of the building.

In the South Boston Court this morning both men waived examination and were held for the Grand Jury in the sum of $1,000.

JAPS QUIT SIBERIA, STAY IN SAKHALIEN

Tokio, Sept. 27 (By International News Service).—Failure of the Chang Chung conference will not interfere with Japan's plans for complete evacuation of Siberia by October, it was announced today by the Foreign Minister.

Japan will evacuate Sakhalien when the Nikolaievsk incident, in which a number of Japanese fishermen were massacred, is settled with a recognized Russian government, the Foreign Minister said, thus reiterating the stand which broke up the Chang Chung conference.

'GRAD'S' PRIZES WIN COURSE AT DEER ISLAND

Frank Martin, sometimes Lewis Rose, stepped blithely down Cambridge street, three big silver loving cups under his arm.

"What have you got?" asked Butler.

"Oh, just some cups I won while at college," chirped Martin.

"Where did you win 'em?"

"Down at the Penn meet."

"So—well, let us see 'em," and Holmes passed the trophies to Butler.

"Well, I represented three—Atlanta, Ga., Concord, Mass., and Charlestown."

This morning Judge Lourie failed to understand how the versatile "collegian" could win cups inscribed St. Joseph's Total Abstinence Society, so he said, "I'll arrange for you to take a post-graduate course of one year at Deer Island House of Correction. Next case."

POPE PIUS MAKES APPEAL FOR PEACE

Constantinople, Sept. 27.—An encyclical from Pope Pius was read in the Catholic Church, calling on the congregations to pray for peace. On Sunday solemn high mass will be celebrated, followed by the late Pope Benedict's peace litany.

DuBuodwo's Cave Man Stuff Didn't Appeal to Katherine

Antonio Du Buodwo loved Katherine Wilkinson.

Katherine didn't love Antonio.

Tony heard of the success of the cave men, so therefore he decided to emulate their example.

He did.

Whereupon Antonio faced Judge Lourie in Municipal Court today on a charge of assault and assault with intent to kill.

Tony had merely forced Katherine to ride to City Point at pistol point and on their return to her house, No. 748 Tremont street, fired three shots, she said.

He was held until October 6 for observation.

JUDGE REFUSES TO BAR BOOK

New York, Sept. 27.—Another attempt to have a book suppressed as immoral—this time the classic "Satyricon of Petronius Arbiter"—fell flat under the gavel of a magistrate today.

A summons obtained by Charles J. Bamberg against Boni and Liveright for publishing the book and against Harry J. Sabzberg for offering to sell a copy was dismissed by Magistrate Oberwager, who said its value to the student and the scholar was such that it would be too serious a matter to deny access to the volume.

The magistrate confirmed other recent court opinions that one must not judge a book by isolated paragraphs, declaring that by this test the works of Shakespeare and even the Bible could be thrown into oblivion as indecent.

WIFE, IN DREAM, SEES HUBBY AS TRUNK SLAYER

Bridgeport, Ct., Sept. 27.—Recalling a nightmare in which she said she saw her husband standing before a trunk in which was a woman's dead body, Mrs. Lydia W. Spalding, now employed as a nurse, told police today, according to Superintendent Patrick Flanagan, that she believed her husband might have had some knowledge of the trunk murder of a woman whose body was shipped from Detroit to the Grand Central Terminal, New York, in July, 1920.

Her husband, Robert Spalding, is held in Peoria, Ill., for murder.

Superintendent Flanagan has telegraphed the police of Detroit the facts obtained from the woman and has offered assistance in further investigation if they deem it desirable.

The discovery of Mrs. Spalding's shattered romance came through the filing of a suit for divorce against her husband, alleging desertion of herself and her five-year-old daughter in this city. She told police she was married to Spalding in 1916 while she was a nurse at a local hospital and he was working in the war plant of the Remington Company here.

Later Spalding went to Detroit and was arrested there on a trivial charge. Mrs. Spalding went to that city, she said, and was convinced her husband was insane and asked the police to have him examined, but they refused.

According to the police, she said he threatened to kill her several times and when an attempt was made to draft him into the army he threatened to kill several persons and himself. He also threatened to kill his mother in Peoria, Mrs. Spalding said.

Mrs. Spalding is now living here with her daughter and is employed as nurse in a local department store.

GIRL'S BODY TAKEN FROM ST. LOUIS GRAVE

St. Louis, Mo., Sept. 27.—The police today are investigating the disappearance of the body of Miss Celestine Schneider, from its grave in Mount Hope Cemetery. Sexton Robinson of the cemetery found an open casket hidden in a clump of bushes and later found the Schneider grave had been opened. The girl, who was eighteen years old, died last August. Police learned that her father and mother had been estranged for more than two years. Both denied knowledge of the disappearance of the body.

GANGSTER INFORMER WITNESS IN COURT

Prisoner Says He Has an Understanding With State at Trial of Rubins

For the second time since the trial of Wilson and members of his gang, "Tug" turned State's evidence and testified against his pals.

The case involved Louis Rubin and his wife of Malden, alleged bootleggers charged with receiving stolen property. Wilson told in detail of the robbery of a freight car in Peabody.

He said he went to Peabody early in October in a seven-passenger touring car, proceeding directly to the freight house. He broke open the door of one of the freight cars, he said, and stole ten cartons of cigarettes. He loaded them into the auto, drove to the Rubins and sold the carton for $250. The market price for the cigarettes was $70 a carton.

Under the questioning of District Attorney Saltonstall the gang leader said he had known the Rubins for five years.

SEVERAL WITNESSES.

The cartons in question were alleged to have been stolen September 7 and October 5, 1921, from the Boston & Maine Railroad. Timothy J. Regan, Boston & Maine railroad checker at Charlestown, testified the cigarettes had been loaded on the freight cars and consigned to the Shay Tobacco Company at Peabody.

Elmer Johnson, Boston & Maine freight checker at Peabody, testified he found the doors open in a freight car and ten cartons missing. In the car, which arrived early in September, the seal was gone from the door and five cartons missing.

Joseph E. Waters, manager of the Shay Tobacco Company, said the company never received the fifteen cartons.

Wilson was subjected to a severe examination by Attorney William Flaherty, representing the Rubins. In regard to the theft, he said he did not plan with the Rubins, and that he heard the cigarettes were to be shipped on the day before the theft was committed, and decided to steal them.

HAS "UNDERSTANDING."

He was asked by Attorney Flaherty whether or not he had been promised anything by the District Attorney for turning State's evidence against the Rubins. Wilson denied he had been promised anything, but said there was an understanding with Mr. Saltonstall in regard to the disposition of the cases against him.

He understood that Mr. Saltonstall would recommend leniency in all cases against him, with the exception of the shooting of a Metropolitan Police officer on Mystic Valley Parkway.

SEEK SECRET LOVE NEST OF SLAIN RECTOR AND CHOIR SINGER

Jealousy Is Now Believed Motive of the Crime; Check Up Suspects

New Brunswick, N. J., Sept. 27 (By International News Service).—Systematic search of hotels and apartments in New York, in an effort to locate the "love nest" which Rev. Edward Wheeler Hall, and Mrs. James Mills are believed to have visited or occupied during frequent pilgrimages to the metropolis, was begun today by county authorities investigating the dual slaying of the rector and his choir singer.

The belief that Dr. Hall maintained a rendezvous in New York, where he and Mrs. Mills spent many hours on numerous occasions, arises from the discovery that the couple made frequent journeys to New York together. These trips were clandestine and did not become known to relatives or families until after the slaying. Authorities intimated the possession of information as to the location of the "love nest" but refused to divulge it.

TO EXHUME BODY.

Jealousy is now generally accepted by County Prosecutor Stricker and his aids as the motive for the crime.

Working on this theory, they have begun a careful check of persons who might have had reason for being envious of Dr. Hall or Mrs. Mills. When these persons are found, an investigation of their activities on the day of the tragedy will be undertaken. Officials let it be known today that a number of persons are under surveillance, but would not divulge their identity. Plans for the exhumation of Mrs. Mills' body were being made by Prosecutor A. M. Beekman of Somerset County, but no date has been fixed for it.

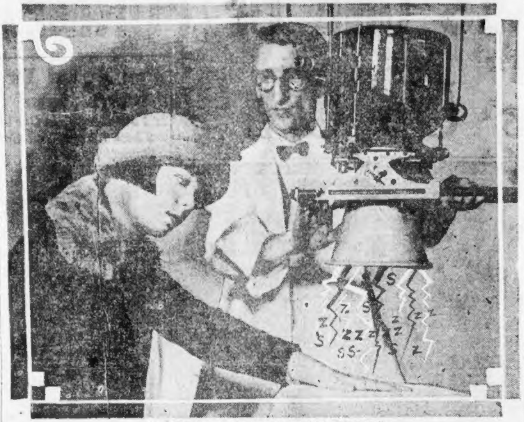
The conflict of testimony regarding the number and nature of the wounds sustained by Mrs. Mills makes an autopsy necessary. Prosecutor Beekman believes, in order that a complete record may be available in the event of the arrest and trial of any suspected slayers.

PROBE RECTOR'S LEGACY.

Investigators maintained silence today as to the result of the grilling undergone yesterday by James Mills, husband of the slain woman. They would not confirm reports that discrepancies in his story had been discovered.

An effort to learn the disposition of a legacy of $10,000, left to Dr. Hall several months ago by his wealthy mother-in-law, is being made by the authorities.

Prohibition Makes City X-Ray Doctor Work Overtime



ISN'T IT ALMOST COOKED, DOC?

By THE FLAPPER
(Caryl Frink)

Dr. William Mulvaney, the man who takes pitchas of folks' bones at the City Hospital, was busier than a family of ants doing their Fall housecleaning.

"Oh me, oh my, oh me, oh my," he yawned as I came tripping into his studio, "another skull case?"

"Nope," I said. "Why?"

"Well? that's what we mostly get of a Monday morning," the doc explained. "I've X-rayed some 52 skulls already this morning and it still lacks six minutes of ten. Look out! Don't lean on the machinery."

VOLSTEAD TO BLAME.

"But whassamatter?" I wanted to know, changing from X-ray table to a chair.

"Bad likker," answered the doc. "They get paid of a Saturday, snozzled of a Sunday, and dragged in here by the police of a Monday morning.

"Then it isn't true that a shellacked guy can come to no harm?"

"Nothing," sighed the X-ray man, "is true any more."

"Why, this stuff they inhale now knocks 'em silly. They fall over backwards and land on their skulls. Then we gotta fix 'em up.

"We got one egg,"—the bone photographer was warming up to his subject—"who gets hauled in here every week. When he goes out patched up next day he always says:

" 'S'long, doc, see ya next week. Don't take any wooden alchohol.'

"An' sure enough, next week he's in again. His skull looks like a crazy quilt."

At this point a mild looking little man came in to have a fractured jaw photographed. When he saw the X-ray apparatus, which looks more murderous than anything they've got on the Convict Ship, he went pale around the gills and started to back out.

TRY IT ON THE FLAP.

"Tha-hat's what my dentist told me when he broke it," trembled the patient.

"Well, now look here," said the doc, cheerily, "the flapper'll try it first an' if she doesn't mind it, will you try it?"

"All right," agreed the nervous patient.

So the skeleton artist put my hand under the machine and ran around to his little switch office. He peered at me through the little window and grinned amiably. Then he turned on the switch.

It sounded like the end of the world, but it didn't hurt a bit. And the pictures didn't turn out half bad. The bone doc is having a half dozen of 'em finished for me in sepia.

MEN BARBERS BOB MURIEL'S TRESSES

Chicago, Sept. 27.—Temperamental Muriel McCormick has started a new fad. And said fad has the boys around the Drake Hotel "up in the air."

Miss Muriel McCormick.

Muriel just must be treated by men barbers, and so—

There's now a steady stream of flappers hopping in and out of the barber chairs in the Drake, and—

YOR GAINER SEEKS RE-ELECTION

Providence, Sept. 27.—Mayor Joseph H. Gainer will be a candidate for the Democratic mayoralty nomination. The Mayor settled all doubt as to his future course of action by announcing that he would seek re-election instead of running for the Democratic nomination for Governor as had been rumored persistently for some weeks past. Mayor Gainer has served for ten years and during his tenure of office has built up a powerful organization that was believed strong enough to sweep him into the nomination for governorship.

PRINTERS' HEAD FLAYS THE MEDDLERS

Pressmen's Home, Tenn., Sept. 27.—Declaring that the union had been "preyed upon by a group of meddlesome and unscrupulous lawyers, encouraged by antagonistic employers," Colonel George L. Berry, president of the International Printing Pressment's and Assistants' Union of North America, appealed for a concerted effort to preserve the stability and integrity of the union in his report prepared for submission to the twenty-ninth biennial convention here today.

Commenting upon the action brought against him and other international officers by actions inside the union, President Berry declares that "the criticism directed against the officers is not only non-constructive, but is levelled against the constitutional principles which have kept the union intact through the several decades of its existence."

Navy Yard Lay Off

Lack of money was given at the Charlestown Navy Yard as the cause for the lay off of thirty employes of the plant department there. Eleven of the men were laborers.

DYES WILL PAY GERMAN DEBT TO AMERICA

Washington, Sept. 27.—Germany's debt of $256,000,000 for maintaining the American Army of Occupation on the Rhine is to be paid by means of dyes, under a plan worked out by Secretary Hughes and approved by the Reparations Commission. The plan provides that the American share of German dyes shall not be paid in cash, but shall be credited upon the German account for the cost of maintaining United States troops in the Rhineland.

The agreement of the reparations commission to permit the United States to receive its share of German dyes without actual cash payment, the amounts to apply upon the costs of the army of occupation is regarded as a distinct diplomatic victory for the United States government.

While Secretary Hughes in his note to the reparations commission sharply called attention to the fact that the costs of the army of occupation constituted a prior lien upon the resources of Germany and would have to be provided for by the Allies before they began to take payments on general reparations, it was assumed that a long time would elapse before the United States began to realize on the army of occupation account.

The allied governments have consented to this proposal notwithstanding the fact that they raised strenuous objection when this government suggested some months ago that the United States expected to be compensated for the cost of maintaining the army of occupation before any payments were made on general reparations.

Stranded American Tourists Hoot At French Strikers

Marseilles, France, Sept. 26. (By I. N. S.)—Eighteen hundred stranded tourists, including many Americans, took part today in a noisy demonstration against the French seamen's strike.

The strike is holding up traffic owing to the fact that steamships cannot be loaded and unloaded.

OPEN ST. MARY'S SCHOOL TONIGHT

The official opening of St. Mary's Catholic Association building, Prospect and Harvard streets, Cambridge, will be held this evening. Rev. Michael J. Doodye, president of the association, and other speakers will make addresses, after which there will be a basket ball game and a musical program and dancing.

HOSPITAL WILL TREAT MIND AND BODY

New York, Sept. 27.—Physicians, clergymen, psycho-analysts, metaphysicians, sociologists, Christian Scientists and Emmanuelists will labor together in the first psycho-medical hospital in the world, which will be opened here soon. Plans for the new hospital will be completed within two months.

This was announced by Dr. Edward S. Cowles, expert on psychotherapy and psychopathology after learning that he had been appointed to the Episcopal church commission on the ministry of healing.

"Mental treatment where body treatment is ignored is obviously unfair to the patient, to mankind and to God. Our hospital will accept patients for treatment both of the body and the mind."

FLAPPERS, YOU PLAYED HER FALSE!

New York, Sept. 27.—Long gowns of the ground gripper variety, vampirish hats and all the other woman-of-the-world type of female fittings broadcast from Paris late this Summer are winning the battle against the sporty, short-skirted, dinky-hatted appurtenances of flapperdom, it became apparent today with the announcement of the filing of an involuntary petition of bankruptcy against the Flapper Shop, where Miss Fannie Luball has been dispensing equipment of the fast disappearing flapper tribe.

The bobbed-headed girls of Greenwich Village and Times Square changed their allegiance from New York to the Rue De La Paix so suddenly that Miss Luball found herself stranded with lots of non-regulation uniforms.

U. S. MOVES TO CANCEL HANSON CITIZENSHIP

New York, Sept. 27.—The United States began suit in Federal Court here today for cancellation of the naturalization of Ferdinand Hansen, writer and friend of Jeremiah J. REPORT TURKS SEIZE 900 FOR MASSACRE

London, Sept. 27.—An unconfirmed dispatch to the Times reported that the Christian population of Bigha had been wiped out by the Turks. Nine hundred Greek and Armenian Christians were said to have been seized in towns in the Bigha District and carried off for massacre. Many were shot.

Constantinople, Sept. 27 (By the Associated Press).—It is forecast that the Kemalist reply to the allied peace note contains conditions unacceptable to the allies, in that the Nationalists insist upon the use of the straits for transporting troops to Thrace before the beginning of the peace conference.

Turks to Tell Allies to Get Out of Thrace

Paris, Sept. 27.—The Agora government has decided to send a note to the Powers demanding the immediate evacuation of Thrace, according to a statement attributed by the Figaro to Ferid Bey, Kemalist representative in France. This step has been decided upon, he said, because it was certain the Greeks were preparing for systematic destruction of the country and had already arrested and sent to Greece a number of prominent Turks to be held in exchange for Greeks made captive by the Turks.

Anglo-Graeco-Turk Parley on Sunday

By International News Service.

Constantinople, Sept. 27.—An armistice conference has been arranged for Sunday seeking to end hostilities between the Turks and Greeks and to prevent war between the Turks and British. Admiral Bristol, high commissioner of the United States navy, will be an "observer."

AIRPLANES SEARCH FOR MISSING BLIMP

San Francisco, Sept. 27.—Three army airplanes were sent from the Presidio here this morning to search for the army dirigible C-2, which at that time was more than an hour overdue from Ross Field, Arcadia, Cal., where it ended a transcontinental flight. Army officials believed strong head winds delayed the blimp.

Pope Asks Kenal Not to Start New War

By International News Service.

Rome, Sept. 27.—Pope Pius XI. today cabled to Mstapha Kemal Pasha urging him not to go to war against the British in the Near East. There is much anxiety in Vatican circles over the possibility of war in the Balkans.

GERMANS TO BUILD 2 HUGE FREIGHTERS

New York, Sept. 27.—Construction of two of the largest freighters ever built, to carry ore from Chile to Atlantic coast ports of the United States, has been ordered in connection with a twenty-year hauling contract between the Bethlehem Steel Corporation and Axel Broström & Sons of Gothenburg, Sweden, it was announced today.

The new ships, to be built at Hamburg, Germany, to go into service next June, will be of 21,000 deadweight tonnage.

POLAND BUYS U. S. FOREIGN R. R. CARS

Washington, Sept. 27.—The War Department announced today the sale of 7,504 European-type railway cars to the Republic of Poland for the sum of $4,302,560, of which $1,290,940 will be paid in cash and the remainder in six-year, 5 per cent. notes of the Polish Republic. The Polish government, the statement said, is arranging to complete the shipment of the cars to Poland in about ten months. The cars are stored at Norfolk and New York, and because of differences in type and gauge are not available for use on American railroads, having been built here during the war.

which England thought she was to control with her allies. The Sultan probably has come to the end of his rope, and a new force, built upon the arrival of the Mohammedan spirit, comes up, and talks threateningly to civilized Europe.

In Athens the Greeks have discovered that a King, accident of birth, doesn't amount to much in a real emergency, except rarely. They are trying to get back Venizelos, a real man, and get rid of their imitation King. Better for them, had they had sense enough in the beginning to keep free of him.

Harvard is to have a school of public health, thanks to the gift of John D. Rockefeller, which will amount, in all, to two millions.

Harvard will open simultaneously a school of public health and a school of theology—interesting mixture.

Perhaps the Harvard authorities, made richer by Mr. Rockefeller's gift, would like to ask that gentleman what he thinks about depriving Jews of education.

Of two Jewish brothers, one is at the head of Rockefeller's admirable scientific institute in New York, where diseases are studied and fought. The other plays an important part in the Rockefeller Foundation, investigating scientifically European conditions in which the Rockefeller enterprises are interested, philanthropically.

The young men that attend Harvard's school of health will learn in their first year that the Jews, and the Jews ALONE, kept knowledge of health and medicine alive, during the dark ages. They were among the best workers in medicine and in all science today. The Harvard plan to exclude them from opportunity which would result in benefit to the whole of humanity is silly, to put it mildly.

Money has become more plentiful. John Harvard started Harvard College with a legacy of seven hundred and seventy-nine pounds, when he died in 1638.

John D. Rockefeller, not quite 300 years later, hands out a small gift of two millions, really small, for Rockefeller.

What will be the big gift of 300 years hence? Will it be ten billions, or will the people have learned to finance their own education?

Puns are abominable, "the lowest form of wit," except when they reveal national character.

The world is interested in the Near East problem, control of the Dardanelles, fate of Constantinople, return of Asiatic power to a proud position on European soil.

American advertising keenness sees in all that many things, but first of all the following:

The name of the principal actor in the Turkish "come back" is Mustapha Kemal. And the agent of a well-known cigarette concern immediately begins preparing "copy" which reads, "Mustapha translated into English means 'Must have a camel.'"

That may hurt your feelings. But it shows the quickness of American advertisers.

Louis Seibold, one of the ablest Washington correspondents, says that in this campaign "political leaders are entirely indifferent to the vote and voice of labor." According to Seibold, who understands public men and political plans as well as anybody, the labor men and their votes are put aside as of not the slightest importance.

This is interesting and puzzling. Every industry, from oil to steel and from sugar to beets to shipbuilding, has its power in politics. Religions have their power and their leaders receive careful attention. But labor, making up three-quarters of the whole population, is classified as "not worth bothering about." How do you explain that?

Simply enough. Labor in the United States lacks solidarity, because it lacks homogeneousness.

MOTHER, FEARING EXPOSE, WOULD NOT TEACH BABY TO TALK

HAD MEN VISIT HER IN HOME

Sister-in-Law Accuses Fitchburg Wife Who Eloped With "Al" Chambers

Fitchburg, Sept. 27.—Mrs. Elizabeth Miller, who is now being held in Baltimore, where she was arrested a few days ago with Alfred Chambers of [illegible] street, refused to teach her baby daughter, Edith, to talk so that the child "can't tell her husband what goes on in the house while he's away."

This according to her sister-in-law, Mrs. John Ford, who is a sister of Arthur O. Miller, the woman's husband.

While Arthur was away at work lots of young men used to come to the house and call on Elizabeth, said Mrs. Ford. "When Edith, her daughter, was two years old, I asked her why she didn't teach the child to talk. She said, 'Do you think I want her to be able to tell Arthur what happens here while he is working? I guess not.'

"Elizabeth told me that she loved Chambers and that no one was going to keep them apart. I asked her if she didn't feel sorry for Mrs. Chambers, who is the mother of five children, and she said, 'Let Mrs. Chambers look after herself. I want him, and I'm going to have him.'"

Mrs. Ford said that the Millers, who were married five years ago, got along splendidly until after Edith was born, four years ago. Then, she said, the wife began going out nights, receiving attention from other men and neglecting her home.

Mrs. Chambers, the deserted wife, said she is going to file suit for divorce at once, and declares she does not wish ever to see her husband again.

Chambers is under arrest in Baltimore, where he motored with Mrs. Miller, for violating the Mann Act. Mrs. Miller is being held as a government witness.

BEAR PARENT NO ILL WILL

MR. AND MRS. CLARENCE H. WALSH

Mr. Walsh forgives mother-in-law for opposition to her daughter's wedding and asserts that the door of the home is open to her if she wishes to call. He denies her assertion that he and his bride have separated.

SEPARATION IS DENIED BY NEWLYWEDS

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence H. Walsh rise to a point of order.

"I see in your paper that my mother-in-law, Mrs. Emma McDonough, says that Gertrude and I are separated and not living together," Mr. Walsh remarked, as he paid a visit to the editorial office with his bride of four months hanging on his arm and his every word.

"That is not true. Gertrude and I are living with my folks at No. 3 Fourth street place, and Gertrude's mother, despite all she has done to wreck our marriage and our happiness, is welcome to call on us. I shall not turn her from my door as she turned her own daughter, just because she married a man whose religious convictions differ from her own.

"She has not forgiven Gertrude for marrying me, but I forgive her freely. Won't you print that so that she may know we harbor no ill will?"

SUSPECT FORD DODGED HIS TAXES

Detroit, Sept. 27.—If Henry Ford forgot about a deposit of $2,000,000 in a Windsor, Ont., bank, as was reported several days ago, it is quite certain that he also neglected to make a tax return on the deposit. Alexander Black, assessment commissioners of Windsor, reasoned today, as he started an investigation of the manufacturer's cash resources across the border.

Under the Ontario law, interest on bank deposits may be levied upon for municipal income tax and the reported "lost account," Black said, had not been declared. The commissioner figured Mr. Ford owed the city of Windsor about $5,500 in taxes for the three years the $2,000,000 was said to have been on deposit.

URGE OPENING TO SAVE MINERS' LIVES

Jackson, Cal., Sept. 27 (By International News Service.)—With the coroner's investigation of the death of forty-seven miners in the Argonaut gold mine completed, the way was paved today for the opening of the State probe which will be conducted by a committee of three appointed by Governor Stephens. The jury returned a verdict that the miners came to their deaths "by suffocation from poisonous gas fumes caused by fire of unknown origin." and recommended the "Argonaut Mining Company and the Kennedy Mining Company be compelled to keep and maintain an opening with proper doors at one of the lower levels."

CATHOLICS TAKE UP EDUCATION

Washington, Sept. 27.—Catholic educational policies are expected to be the main subject of discussion at the annual meeting which begins here today, of the church hierarchy in which more than seventy of the archbishops and bishops of the United States participated.

Recent steps taken by the church towards the maintenance of free schools under direction of the religious body and the building up of institutions for use as educational and community centres throughout the country are expected to form important phases of the hierarchial study. In this connection a revision of the aims of the Catholic University here probably will be taken up.

Are you using today what belongs to tomorrow?

In the morning—when you're fresh and fit—you meet every demand easily. How are you working when four o'clock comes?

Are you still fresh—or have you begun to draw on the reserves no man dares touch too often? Are you using today the energy that belongs to tomorrow?

Scientists tell us that every healthy man starts the morning with energy enough to last him through the day—but he must use it properly and guard against leakage and waste.

The waste that most men think they've stopped

Thousands of men and women have learned that one sure loss of energy comes from walking and standing on hard heels. They wear rubber heels to relieve this drain on their strength.

Twenty-five years ago a man hit on this idea by accident. Working constantly on his feet all day he used to find himself each night with no energy left—and a backache in the bargain.

One day instead of standing on the hard floor he stood on a rubber mat. The effect astonished him. He felt better that night than he had in weeks. Next day he cut two pieces of rubber from the mat and fastened them to the heels of his shoes.

And that was the beginning of the idea that resulted in O'Sullivan's Heels!

Look at your heels!

Like all good things, O'Sullivan's Heels have been widely imitated. Are yours O'Sullivan's?

If they're not—ask your repairman for O'Sullivan's next time! O'Sullivan's usually cost you no more than ordinary rubber heels. But notice the difference at the end of each day!

You'll understand then why millions of men and women today don't just "wear rubber heels"—they insist on O'Sullivan's!

DEMOCRAT PLEA FOR TOILER IN PLATFORM

Springfield, Sept. 27.—Here are the high lights of the platform adopted at the Democratic State convention here:

The creating and perpetuating of an industrial peace founded on an equitable share of the fruits of industry for labor and capital.

Establishment of an institute of labor.

Resistance to any attempts to repeal laws protecting the worker.

An amendment to the Constitution to procure uniform laws for labor and to end child labor.

Adequate salaries to teachers.

Legislation and executive action that will stop lynch law.

Opposition to the return of the saloon, but belief in the legal use of light wines and beer.

Short term credits to farmers.

A system of food dispatching which would direct farm products to markets where they are needed.

Installation of a two-year course in the State Agricultural College.

Legislation to protect the milk-producing farmer.

LODGE CONDEMNED.

Condemnation of Senator Lodge for "his leadership for the adoption of the iniquitous tariff bill, which constitutes a betrayal of the American people," and commendation of Senator Walsh for "his gallant fight made in behalf of the American people."

A demand for relief from the increasing tax burden on the small home owner and rent-payer.

Support of a program of legislation for a proper hospitalization and care of wounded ex-service men.

Complete and practical training for disabled veterans.

Payment of an adjusted compensation for service men immediately in cash, or, if desired, in lands, mortgages or insurance.

An efficient system of transportation that will foster the industries of New England.

Immediate abolition by the Interstate Commerce Commission of the system of transportation differentials which "strangle the commercial life of New England."

Solution of the problems arising from the increased use of trucks and motor vehicles.

FOR OLD-AGE PENSIONS.

Retention of the direct primary, with the abolition of party enrollment.

Pledging the Commonwealth to the preservation of freedom of speech, the press and the right of peaceable assembly.

Amendment of the workmen's disability law providing for immediate compensation following injury, and an increase in compensation for workmen who are injured or killed in industry.

Condemnation of a sterile leadership lodged in an impotent Senate; a House of Representatives that does nothing and adjourns for a Senate that does less to catch up with it; a Senate and a House awaiting orders from a hesitating President and rejecting his hesitant advice when at last given.

A tribute to Woodrow Wilson.

SON'S PLEA OPPOSED BY CROKER'S WIDOW

New York, Sept. 27.—Surrogate Foley reserved decision on the application of Richard Croker Jr., that he be appointed temporary administrator of the estate in this county of his father, the late Richard Croker, one-time Tammany chief.

His application was opposed by Mrs. Beula Croker, the widow, who said young Croker wanted the appointment so as to continue three suits brought by the Croker children against their father pending when he died.

LYNN GETS CHEAPER GAS AND ELECTRICITY

Lynn consumers of gas and electricity will benefit by a rate reduction for both of those services, beginning next Sunday. The price of gas will drop 10 cents per 1,000 cubic feet to $1.45. This is accompanied by the usual 10-cent rebate for prompt payment, which brings the price down to $1.35 per 1 000. Electricity bills will drop half cent per kilowatt hour to 11 cents. It is estimated that these reductions will save the people of Lynn more than $150,000 annually.

STITCHES TAKEN IN STABBED MAN'S HEART

AUTOS, CANDY, MAGIC READY FOR CHILDREN

TWO WHO WILL SEE THURSTON

Boys and girls of Boston orphan asylums, who will be the guests of Thurston, the magician, and the Boston American, at an afternoon of magic in the Plymouth Theatre tomorrow, will ride to the theatre in automobiles and each receive a bag of candy.

ORPHANS AWAIT AFTERNOON OF MAGIC

"Some of 'em don't believe it."

Meaning some of the boys and girls in Boston orphan asylums who are going to be guests of Thurston, the magician, and the Boston American at an afternoon of magic in the Plymouth Theatre tomorrow.

They can't really believe that Thurston can pick rabbits out of hats and shake doves out of handkerchiefs, and make real, live girls disappear out of the air, "right while you're lookin' at 'em."

Harry Heller, who has the candy privilege at several local theatres, will provide a bag of candy for every orphan at the Thursday performance.

Chester I. Campbell will transport some boys and girls from the Home for Italian Children, Home for Destitute Catholic Children, Salvation Army, New England Home for Little Wanderers.

Mayor Curley will care for children from the House of the Angel Guardian.

SCHEDULE FOR CARS.

Owners of private cars, who have volunteered for the afternoon, are scheduled to call for children as follows:

Mrs. Ida M. Lumber, No. 9 Thayer place, Brookline, to Home for Little Wanderers.

Miss Sarah Blasberg of No. 147 Blackstone street, Mrs. Frank Rosoff of No. 260 Seaver street, Miss Beatrice Silverman of No. 25 Tremont street, Dr. N. Steinberg of No. 73 Humboldt avenue, Mrs. Hyman of No. 30 Bicknell street, Dorchester, and A. M. Sacks of No. 19 Brenton street, Dorchester, to Home for Jewish Children.

E. B. Barrett of No. 15 Kenwood road, Everett, and Mr. Goodwin of No. 84 Perkins street, Somerville, to Volunteers of America.

FIREBUG TRIES TO BURN TWO HOUSES

Investigation of two fires in the cellar of adjoining houses in the rear of No. 38 St. Martin street, Charlestown, believed by fire and police officials to have been of incendiary origin, is under way.

A hole was cut between the two houses to get at the first fire and when the firemen responded on the second call, they found a door up against the large hole in the cellar, which had been saturated with kerosene oil. The house at No. 2 is owned and occupied by Mrs. McCurry, while No. 3 is occupied by Mrs. Nellie Gorman.

WEEKS WANTS ARMY BACK AT 150,000

Washington, Sept. 27 (By Associated Press).—Army appropriation estimates for the next year, calling for the present strength of 12,000 officers and 125,000 enlisted men, will be submitted to the budget conference this week. Secretary Weeks and his advisers will declare that progressive deterioration in the military establishment will continue unless the regulars are restored to the strength of 3,000 officers and 150,000 men asked for last year.

NORTHCLIFFE PRESS TAKEN BY BROTHER

London, Sept. 27.—Viscount Rothmere, younger brother of the late Viscount Northcliffe, has acquired the late Viscount Northcliffe's interest in the Daily Mail and its associated papers, including the Evening News and the Weekly Despatch. He is now the principal proprietor of these papers.

RACE DECISION FRIDAY IN GLOUCESTER

Gloucester, Sept. 27.—The American fisherman's race committee will hold a meeting Friday to decide what action will be taken in regard to the latest decision of the Halifax trustees, who refuse to lift the ban on the Boston schooner Mayflower.

The prevalent opinion here is that the races should be held despite the fact that the Mayflower has been ruled ineligible.

Gloucester, Sept. 27.—If Skipper Angus Walters of the Canadian champion fishing schooner Bluenose wants a race with the Mayflower, he will be taken up at a minute's notice. This is the answer given by American fishermen to the defi hurled by the Bluenose. A forty-mile race over an open sea course will suit the Yankee fishermen they say and they are willing to back up their statement with real money. Mayflower Associates are willing to accept Captain Walters' challenge.

DEATH PENALTY FOR IRISH REPUBLICANS

Belfast, Sept. 27.—The provisional government in South Ireland has sanctioned the setting up of military courts or committees to deal with persons charged with interfering with the restoration of order or endangering public safety, it is announced in messages from the Free State today. Every such tribunal is to include one member certified by a law officer to be a person of legal knowledge and experience.

The offences which these courts are to try include attacks on the national forces, arson, looting, destruction, and possession of arms and ammunition or certain explosives without authority.

These courts are empowered to inflict the death penalty in extreme cases. Punishment in other instances may be imprisonment, or fine without imprisonment. Provision also is made for regulating and controlling the sale or transfer of arms.

Belfast, Sept. 27. International News Service)—Several casualties resulted when Free State troops fired upon riotous irregular prisoners in the Cork jail today. Irregulars have renewed their attacks at Macroom, Fenit and Tralee.

Severe fighting was reported, accompanied by casualties.

440 Cork Prisoners Riot; Two Shot

Belfast, Sept. 27.—A Cork message today says some 440 prisoners in the jail there started rioting Sunday and wrecked several cells. After several hours of pandemonium the authorities gave the men a specified time to desist. This time was later extended and the guards then fired, wounding two men, one of them fatally, on which the rioting ceased.

DORCHESTER GIRL IS FALL BRIDE

In the presence of a large number of relatives and friends, Miss Dorothea R. Kelly of No. 194 Hamilton street, Dorchester, and Matthew F. O'Brien of No. 63 Richfield street, Dorchester, were married by Bishop Joseph Anderson at St. Peter's Church. The bride was attended by Miss Rena O'Brien, sister of the bridegroom, and Chester F. Kelly, the bride's brother, was best man. After a honeymoon in Canada the young couple will live at No. 194 Hamilton street, Dorchester.

RECORDS SEARCHED IN STORES

them seem to think that the fear of being separated by death prompted them to die together.

Telegrams received by local newspapers from Boston and Gorham said that on the neckties worn by the men found in the woods was the mark of Taylor & Bartelt, haberdashers, of Passaic. Mr. Bartelt, from descriptions sent here, said he felt sure the men were the Westervelt brothers, who traded at his shop.

They lived in half of a two-family house at Little Falls. The woman occupying the other part said she had not seen them since they took a small valise and told her they were going on a short trip on September 9.

That was the last day they were seen by their newsdealer, and since then James had not been in his office at Delewanna, where he was a director of a cemetery company.

Trace Cord Twins Used for Death

Gorham, Me., Sept. 27.—Investigators of the mysterious suicide here of two men, undoubtedly brothers and possibly twins, began inquiries today at country stores of this district for any recent sales of clothesline to men answering the descriptions of the bodies found hanging in the lonely clearing a half mile off South street.

The bodies, with hands clasped, were hanging side by side by new clothesline fastened to the same tree limb.

Town records of forty to fifty years ago also are searched, to see if any names will be disclosed of brothers who left the town in the intervening years and have not been heard from since. This is one theory that the two men, bent on suicide together, turned their steps back to their home town, there to stage the final act of their drama of life.

FARMER MET THEM.

Fred Meserve, local farmer, identified the bodies today as those of two men he met last Thursday walking along the tangled wood path leading from South street to the suicied spot. One carried a bundle thought to have been the death clothesline.

"When I passed them," Mr. Meserves said today, "they were walking slowly. I did not speak to them, nor they to me."

Mr. Meserve is the last person, so far as known, who saw the two men alive.

The theory that one of the men was William D. Dutton, blacksmith's helper, who worked here five years ago, failed today, because tattoo marks known to be on one of Dutton's arms are absent from this body.

Bootleggers Pay Well for Pictures of Dry Agents

Philadelphia, Sept. 27.—A new and fairly lucrative business is coming into being in these parts as a result of prohibition, according to J. E. Jones, assistant national prohibition commissioner, who is here from Washington on a trip of inspection. It is the selling of photographs of prohibition agents to saloon keepers who violate both the spirit and the letter of the prohibition law. New Jersey saloon keepers, said Mr. Jones, are glad to pay five dollars apiece for authentic pictures.

Mr. Jones also has found that expert counterfeiters are turning from the manufacture of spurious currency to that of removal permits and whiskey bottle labels and are finding it a vocation "simpler of accomplishment, just as profitable, but not nearly so dangerous as making money."

MOVIE WORLD NEWS AND COMMENT

By FREDERICK JOHNS.

ALTHOUGH born and educated in New York City, Pedro de Cordoba claims direct descent from "El Gran Capitan," Gonsalvo de Cordoba, who drove the Moors out of Spain. One can readily credit this when, as the mysterious Dr. Dimitrious in "The Young Diana," he dons the robes of a mediaeval alchemist and performs his incantations in a weird laboratory with a gigantic Moorish attendant. Mr. De Cordoba gained his early stage training in Shakespearean repertoire with Sothern and Marlowe and William Faversham, and he was leading man with Margaret Anglin and Marjorie Rambeau.

FILM CONDITIONS ABROAD.

GEORGE E. KANN, head of Goldwyn's foreign department, who returned from Europe recently, reports that motion picture conditions abroad are bad, with little to be feared here in the way of competition in our own market.

In England the American film retains its popularity and conditions have improved as a result of the inroads made on the block and the advance booking systems.

BRILLIANT CHILD ACTRESS.

LUCILLE RICKSEN, who has a girl part in "Remembrance," a Rupert Hughes-Goldwyn photodrama, now is fourteen years old. She had a brilliant career as a child actress, as those who saw the Booth Tarkington "Edgar" comedies, for instance, will recall. Now her friends believe she is on the eve of further triumphs as a matured player.

CHILDREN GET FREE BOAT.

CHILDREN of Stamford Conn., have a beautiful barge to play on owing to the kindness of Cosmopolitan Productions of New York. During the filming of "When Knighthood Was in Flower," starring Marion Davies, some scenes were made on the Marks estate in Stamford. After the work was completed Mr. Marks asked that the barge which bore Princess Mary Tudor upstream should be left anchored so that the children of the neighborhood might amuse themselves with it.

spread rapidly. Before firemen could get hose lines laid the flames were licking at least a dozen buildings.

The fire spread over an area bounded by Morton, Broad, Bath Row, Freebody and Middleton avenues.

The entire Newport fire department, apparatus from nearby towns and scores of volunteers, many from the fashionable sections of the city, fought the flames.

The fire covered an area of about one-half mile square.

Included among the buildings destroyed are a special stable constructed for the housing of show horses brought to the famous Newport Horse Show and the Beach House, a small family hotel.

DROP CHARGE OF WAR TREASON

New Haven, Ct., Sept. 27.—The case against Maximilian von Hoegen former New Haven attorney, who was arrested in December, 1917, on a charge of treason, was dismissed in the United States District Court here today on the recommendation of Assistant United States Attorney Cohen by Judge Edwin S. Thomas. Von Hoegen was not in court, and it is believed that he is living in New York.

Von Hoegen first came into notice shortly after the beginning of the World War by publicly expressing his sympathy with Germany, and condemning the attitude of the United States. He claimed to have been in the employ of Von Papen, chief German propagandist in the United States, for the purpose of obtaining information on contracts being filled by munition makers in Connecticut for the British government.

His attitude had attracted so much attention that he was indicted in December, 1917, on the treason charge. Shortly after the indictment was returned a party of citizens visited him at his home one night and roughly handled him. He disappeared soon after and was found in San Antonio, Texas, after a military court had acquitted him of evading the draft.

Steeplechases to Draw Large Society Following, Says Betty Alden

By BETTY ALDEN.

THE steeplechases out Topsfield way, followed by a drag hunt and breakfast at the Myopia Club promise a red-letter program of excitement for the North Shore sporting contingent October 21.

These equine events, taking place at "Willowdale," the Topsfield estate of Bradley W. Palmer, are sure to bring out the entire clan of Rices, Mandells, Ayers, Proctors and Appletons, as well as a host of others.

There are to be four races, the usual flat three-quarter-mile race and the three steeplechases. The latter include one for non-thoroughbred mounts, another for open horses and a third for heavyweight hunters. The first and last of these permit the entry of only qualified hunters.

The group in charge is composed of James Appleton, master of the Myopia hounds; Bayard Tuckerman, Jr., Freddie Ayer, Jr., Neil Rice, Bradley W. Palmer and Gordon C. Prince.

DOROTHY FORBES — with her beautiful white hair, keen brown eyes and kindly smile —is being missed hereabouts, for she is still fighting a tubercular siege at Saranac Lake.

But especially is her absence being bemoaned at the Red Cross headquarters, where she was the leading spirit. All those who know Dorothy Forbes know how unstintedly she gave of her time and vitality to this cause, and when, a few months ago, the news was broadcast that the daughter of the J. Murray Forbes had been forced to go to Saranac Lake, there were many who said that her illness was due to overwork.

Even though the Red Cross is busily preparing for its annual roll call coming shortly, they do not expect her back there this year. All society, of course, is hoping most devoutly for her speedy recovery, for without a doubt is Dorothy Forbes one of the most popular figures in Boston's social and philanthropic circles.

NO. 61 Brattle street, Cambridge, is the abode of Mr. and Mrs. Francis Whiting Hatch (Marjorie Kennard), whose marriage last June at the Summer home of the bride's father at Cazenovia, New York, was a notable event.

Which reminds me that Cambridge is becoming a very popular place of alighting for newlyweds among the ranks of the smart set. Craigie Circle became a particularly popular spot last year.

Mr. and Mrs. Hatch—he is a Harvard '19 man—spent their honeymoon motoring through Canada. The former Marjorie Kennard, who is the daughter of Arthur Kennard, had among her bridal attendants Mrs. Charles E. Thayer, 2nd (Barbara Hall), the Misses Edith Bremer, Harriett Hatch and Elizabeth Bigelow, all of Boston, while the two little daughters of the David M. Littles of Cambridge served as flower girls. There were also several attendants from other cities.

THERE is no end of chattering these days among members of the "first family" contingent, for within the past week or so there has been a veritable deluge of engagement announcements.

First there was quite a stir over the news that Elizabeth or "Sister" Caswell is now the fiancee of Jasper Morgan of New York. This news came almost simultaneously with the announcement that Miss Camilla Sewall is now the prospective bride of Senator Edge. Then came the important tidings of the engagement of Miss Constance Thayer to William Dexter. A little later the many Boston friends of Miss Marion Van Buren Emmons of Hamble, Hants, England, learned with great interest of her betrothal to Richard Sears Humphrey of Milton. The most recent to join the ranks of engagees are Miss Linda Wellington and the Rev. Palfrew Perkins, whose engagement has just been announced by the Miss Wellington's parnts, Mr. and Mrs. liagton's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Louis B. Wellington of Weston

MR. AND MRS. HORATIO NELSON SLATER (May Lyon) were recently entertained at luncheon at Pierre's—one of Gotham's most popular rendezvous—by Mrs. Slater's parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. Denniston Lyon of Pittsburgh.

It was last December that the marriage of young Slater and Miss Lyon took place in Versailles, France, the couple then spending their honeymoon in the Orient and returning to New York in the Spring.

LIGHTED CIGAR SWALLOWED BY CHASE

In common with all others of the varieties, it has ever been the ambition of Charlie Chase, happy hoofer, to stop the show.

Charlie stopped it, all right, at the matinee of the Majestic, where Charlie is a featured member of the cast of "Gimme a Thrill," the Joseph M. Gaites unit of Shubert vaudeville.

Charlie Chase

Charlie does a dance in which he clutches a cigar in his lips, in the manner made famous by Frisco. Attempting to go Frisco one better, Charlie worked up a routine whereby he rolled the cigar in his mouth and sent a shower of sparks through his teeth. This always knocks 'em.

The trouble came when Charlie coughed during the cigar bit, swallowing the butt. A physician was summoned when Charlie bounded off the stage. Hurried measures resulted in Charlie's being able to come back for the last number.

COLORED SHOW AT ARLINGTON IS LIVELY

"Oh Joy," a colored show from New York, has moved into the Arlington Theatre for a fortnight and drew a very large audience to the opening last evening.

This entertainment brings another flock of Afro-American comedians, singers and dancers to town and the great success here of "Shuffle Along" would indicate that there may be a field for a less pretentious and less expensive show of the same character.

CLEVER COMEDIANS.

In talking about "Oh Joy" it must be remembered that it is a popular priced affair.

Louis T. Rogers, the producer, has gathered a big company, with creditable costumes and scenery. The show makes no claims to a plot or any sort of consistent story; it's just a melange of vaudeville specialties, jazz and dancing ensembles.

The comedians are S. T. Whitney, J. Homer Tutt, Amon Davis and Alonzo Fenderson. They are sufficiently amusing in the conventional colored comedian way.

JAZZ SONG A HIT.

Ethel Waters put over a jazz song with a lot of pep and Julia Moody did railroad yard blue number, which stopped the show.

"Oh Joy" won't do much harm to "Shuffle Along," but it is apt to collect a clientele of its own.

36 SEAPLANES OFF TO ATTACK WARSHIPS

WHY BRITAIN WANTS TURKS TO COME BACK

Why has Great Britain consented to restoration of eastern Thrace to Turkey? What do present international moves as regards the Dardanelles mean? The following article, the second of a series of three, based on information received from the Intelligence Service, gives a broad background to a full understanding to present international developments.

By Cosmopolitan News Service.

Washington, Sept. 27.—Greece was particularly adapted to the mission of controlling Asia Minor, thus assuring England's predominance of the Near East, which Great Britain had selected for her to execute, according to reports to the U. S. Intelligence Service.

Largely a country of islands, Greece depended on the good will of the sea power and could, therefore, be relied upon to do Great Britain's bidding under all conditions.

Turkey would be a totally different proposition. For Turkey would have no exposed sea line of communications. She is, moreover, self-contained in respect to food supply. For this reason Turkey has in the past depended on the predominant land power.

Controlling the straits through her fleet, her own land forces and those of the Greeks, Great Britain not only interposed an effectual barrier to any expansion of the land power into Asia Minor but the future of Russia, dependent on an outlet from the Black Sea, was largely under her control.

Great Britain's interests in the Caucasus oil fields, moreover, made it vitally important to her to keep open the straits and the Black Sea. The British hold on the straits was secure so long as the Greek lines held.

Dissolution of the Greek forces has completely altered the situation. The support the Greeks afforded must be sought elsewhere.

For this reason Great Britain is now seeking to effect an arrangement under which Turkey will in part take over the role played by Greece, and which will insure Turkish dependence on British power, reports here indicate.

These conditions can be created by restoring to Turkey Thrace and Constantinople, and retaining Gallipoli under British control. Since then Turkey would depend on the British fleet for continued tenure of her European territory, she would be obliged to play the British role in the Near East.

Great Britain has endeavored to make certain her hold on the straits by the dispatch of every available troop unit to the critical areas—Gallipoli, Chanak and the Ismid Peninsula.

It is very probable that when all the smoke created by the present crisis clears away, British troops may be found securely entranched in a new Gibraltar of the East.

Revolt in Greece Due to Defeat and Big Loss

London, Sept. 27.—The anti-dynastic movement in Greece began with the defeat of the Greek army by the Turks in Asia and culminated with the allied note of Saturday which took away from Greece nearly half of the Thracian territory that had been awarded to her under the Treaty of Sevres.

Dispatches filed in Uthens on Tuesday night said that Constantine was not worried and did not attribute serious concern to the revolutionary movement.

It was evident, however, that the disaffection spread rapidly over night.

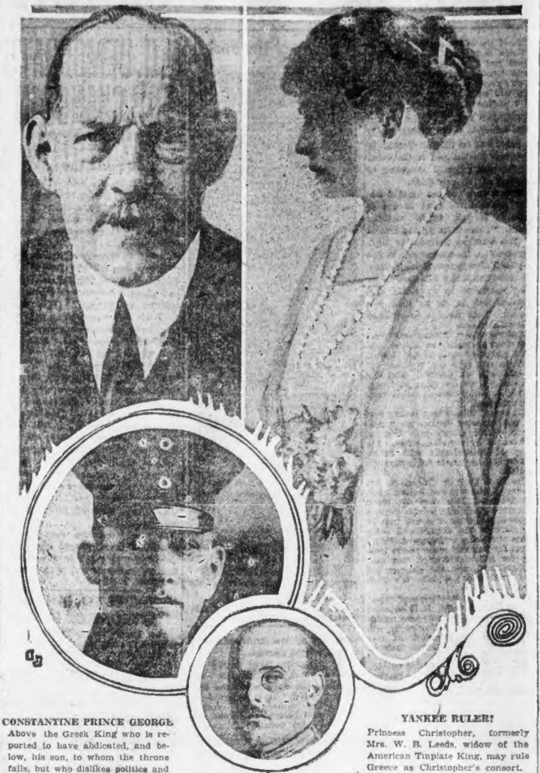
WHO WILL RULE GREECE?



CONSTANTINE PRINCE GEORGE

Above the Greek King who is reported to have abdicated, and below, his son, to whom the throne falls, but who dislikes politics and may spurn it.

CHRISTOPHER

YANKEE RULER!

GREECE SWEPT BY REVOLUTION

on the islands of Mytilene and Chios, off the Smyrna coast, to which they were removed following their crushing defeat by the Turkish Nationalists.

An order for the demobilization of these troops is said to have been the immediate cause of their mutiny.

Vice-Admiral Andrew T. Long, U. S. N., commander of the American naval forces in European waters, has gone to Constantinople to direct the naval operations should any become necessary in participation with the foreign squadrons.

Nearly 3,000 soldiers of all ranks left Aldershot today for embarkation to the Near East.

The revolt quickly spread to the navy and many of the warships refused to answer queries sent out by the admiralty. An airplane appeared over Athens and showered the city with pamphlets signed by Gonatas and demanding the resignation of the government and the abdication of the king.

TURMOIL IN ATHENS.

This created turmoil in the capital, and crowds surged through the streets and about the public buildings. Then a number of the war vessels started for Athens.

A large number of troops mutinied in Saloniki, but this development is said to have taken the form of a military movement organized in Thrace against the Turks.

Official cricles here believe former Premier Venizelos has had no part in the revolt. Because of his importance, however, and his large personal following in Greece, it is pointed out that he will hardly be able to avoid figuring in the subsequent developments.

King Constantine has accepted the resignation of the Cabinet, which quickly followed the reception of two ultimatums from the cruiser Lemnos.

In accepting the resignation the king said he entirely put aside any idea of resistance which would bring, as a result, civil war in Greece.

King Constantine has abdicated in favor of the Crown Prince, according to an Athens dispatch to the Central News.

Princess Christopher

If the Crown Prince declines the throne, as is anticipated, the King's brother Prince Christopher, may accept. This would make his American wife, who formerly was Mrs. W. B. Leeds, Queen.

Constantinople, Sept. 27 (By the Associated Press).—The British are strengthening their lines and checkmating every move made by the Turkish Nationalists. Further arrivals of military and naval units are daily augmenting their forces and inversely impairing Mustapha Kemal's chances of successfully attacking the Straits.

The Sea of Marmora and the Bosphorus are dotted with the most modern warcraft, the concentration rivaling that of the Gallipoli campaign.

display, showing every detail in men's wear in the minutest detail. No man should miss it. No woman, either, who has the faintest interest in men of their own—and what they ought to wear.

Up to the present, women and their fashions have monopolized the "style show" method of apparel publicity, but "them days has gone forever."

These merchants also are giving away clothes for Boston men whose pictures will appear in the Boston American, as a further means of stimulating interest in neatness.

Look over the list. See the dozens of FREE articles that will come in so handily for Winter wear—this cold spell. No matter who you are or what your station may be—a first class suit, overcoat, hat, sweater or box of collars, absolutely FREE for coming and getting, will look like "ready money."

Keep your eyes open today. The big truck is again rumbling about the city, stopping at any old point, where a "shot" can be taken of a group of men, any half dozen of which may figure in the great FREE apparel distribution.

WATCH FOR FACE IN CIRCLE

All of this is done for a purpose. The merchants are frankly on a drive to dress the men of Boston in better style and to consider the class of their apparel with a little more care. The splendid exhibition of every detail of men's wear at the Mechanics Building is the big step in that direction.

In every picture published in the American there will be a face SURROUNDED BY A CIRCLE. If your face is there, YOU GET ONE OF THE FREE ARTICLES OF CLOTHING LISTED below and donated by Boston merchants for the occasion.

The Boston American's big White Truck has already started on its tour of Boston. Keep your eyes open for it and

BE SURE TO GET INTO THE PICTURE.

The Men's Apparel Club of New England is conducting the great style show in Mechanics Building, although the Boston American exclusively is making these gifts to the men of Boston; and the only way you can follow the awards is to buy and read the Boston American. No other announcements will be made.

WATCH THE AMERICAN TODAY—TOMORROW and EVERY DAY.

"John D." Observes Anniversary of His First Job

New York, Sept. 27.—The source of John D. Rockefeller's glee, so noticeable at his Pocantico Hills estate, seemed to be the excellent trouncing administered to his golfing opponents of the afternoon, until he admitted that all the joviality was in celebration of an event of sixty-seven years back—the capture of his first job.

He then told how a Cleveland commission merchant gave him his first desk and a column of figures with dollar marks before them. He looked six weeks for work before he got the job.

"Poor John" got his first pay on New Year's Eve, 1855. Fifty dollars for three months, four days and six hours of toil.

LARGE CROWDS FLOCKING TO STYLE SHOW

At least 3,000 buyers of men's clothing—the largest number of retail clothing buyers even in Boston at one time—are here today giving orders at the Men's Apparel Show at Mechanics Building, held under the auspices of The Men's Apparel Club of New England. They are buying quality and style to take back to every little town and village from Lake Champlain to Providence.

There are two noticeable features of their buying. New England dealers are not buying "jass" clothes. The sudden, striking tailoring and flashing colors that made "jazz" clothes. The sudden, striking tailoring and flashy colors that make "jazz" clothes a big feature of the New York Men's Apparel Show are not wanted in Boston or New England. Among the thousands of orders being placed by the New England dealers, only one order was for the extremely "sporty" suit. It came from a buyer from North Adams.

TROUSERS WITH CUFFS.

The North Adams buyer, after talking it over, cancelled his order. He went home with the type of suit that the average man can adapt to business and to "dress-up" wear.

Another feature of their buying is the fact that there is a decided demand for trousers with cuffs. The long, cuffless trouser which has prevailed for many years among elderly men and lately among the sleekish "cake-eater" with his crushed hat, is not wanted.

"The New England buyer, representing as he does the man from the town and city, knows better than anyone else exactly what style will prevail in his part of the country for the next six months," remarked a member of the show committee of the Men's Apparel Club.

"These men have felt out their ground and they know what their people want. They don't fall for extreme styles and, judging by them, there will be no prevalence of jazz suits in New England this year."

CRITICIZES BOSTONIANS.

The principle of the apparel show, the second of its kind in Boston, is to educate Boston men to the value of being well groomed, according to directors of the exhibition.

"Boston men are not 'good dressers'," declares the head of one of Boston's biggest men's clothing houses. "There is no getting around it. You walk up Tremont or Boylston street in the afternoon and you see plenty of well-dressed young men. But these are young fellows who are being supported by somebody else. They are not paying for their own clothes. Their style is no criterion of Boston's taste.

"But watch the Boston men around five o'clock, when the offices and other places of business are closing. Perhaps one man out of every ten or twelve is well-dressed. The rest are dressed for the most part with a view to being covered rather than being dressed.

"It simply means that Boston men do not consider clothes an investment. Their money goes into an automobile or something else. The value of their clothes, with its relation to their job, is not apparently realized.

"In New York or Chicago or farther west, the men are decidedly better dressers. This does not mean that the western man is more devoted to his appearance; it means that he understands the dollars and cents value of looking well-dressed. Figure it out for yourself when you're looking for a job; unkempt, you lose; well-groomed, and the chances are that you land the job. It's business."

Tonight will be "society" night at the apparel show. It is expected that Governor Cox, who was unable to attend on the opening night, will be present. Many prominent men and women have signified their intention of attending.

Among the men's clothing authorities who are expected are President Earl O. Lehman of the National Men's Apparel Clubs and Leo K. Fishel, secretary and treasurer. Members of the Boston Chamber of Commerce and directors of retail stores and apparel manufacturers of Boston will be present.

An unusually large crowd has been attracted to Mechanics Building since the opening of the show Monday night. It is expected the number of visitors will reach a record total before the formal closing on Friday evening.

N.H. DEMOCRATS FOR CHANGE IN TAX SYSTEM

Concord, N. H., Sept. 27.—Democrats of New Hampshire met here today in State convention in the same Phoenix Hall where the Republicans held deliberations yesterday.

Robert C. Murchie of this city as president sounded the keynote by saying that the Republican party had plunged the country "into distraction and despair." He stigmatized the 1920 Republican campaign as one of "despicable misrepresentation," and declared it was "morally and intellectually corrupt."

The last Democratic administration, said Mr. Murchie, gave the nation the Federal Reserve system, a child labor law, a department of laor in the Cabbinet, farm banks and the Clayton Trust law. The 67th Congress, he said, failed to accomplish "one single act of construction and reform." Mr. Murchie condemned the proposed ship subsidy law and said that in the new tariff bill "the country has been handed over to the powerful interests for exploitation."

In New Hampshire the present system of taxation, said Mr. Murchie, places an unfair burden on the farmers and owners of small homes and must fe remedied.

GIVE UP BILLION IN EUROPEAN INSURANCE

By Cosmopolitan News Service.

New York, Sept. 27.—A billion dollars worth of insurance business in Europe has been given up by three of the largest American insurance companies because, after an intensive study, continental Europe, with the exception of the British Isles, was found to be a hopeless field for business, the Equitable, the Mutual and the New York Life insurance companies announced today in a joint statement.

It was found that the vast uncertainty enshrouding Europe made future business not worth the cost of procuring it.

In Russia, it was said, conditions were so chaotic that there was little to abandon, the American companies' physical assets having long ago been confiscated.

Throughout Europe wage increases are being faced, depreciated currency must be considered and the generally impoverished condition of the central European nations plays an important roll in depressing business. Therefore the bulk of the vast business of the American concerns has been turned over to newly organized native firms.

In Germany twelve banks combined to take over the outstanding policies.

MRS. TIERNAN 'UNFIT TO WEAR MOTHER'S SACRED HALO'

SCREAMS AT VERBAL LASHING

Poulin's Lawyer Brands Her a Courtesan; Professor Cringes Under Flaying

South Bend, Ind., Sept. 27.—The answer to the question of who is the father of "Exhibit A"—the cooing bundle of evidence that has been squirming and kicking about on the counsel table during eight lively days of court—now rests with Judge Chester Ducomb.

The paternity hearing came to a [illegible] after an evening session to [illegible] the State to conclude its argument.

Again Mrs. Augusta Tiernan precipitated a flurry and halted the proceeding when she leaped to her feet and [illegible] "Stop, stop, don't you [illegible]—don't you dare—"

Attorney Samuel Schwartz of the [illegible] for the defence, who was [illegible] a lurid picture of the woman as an "unconscionable courtesan who had [illegible] stripped herself of the last vestige of virtue and forfeited the right to lay claim to the sacred halo of motherhood."

REPROACH TOO MUCH.

Mrs. Tiernan had repressed her emotion all day. Except for intermittent outbursts of quiet weeping and darting glances of scorn at her avowed enemies on the witness stand, she curbed every emotional impulse until Mr. Schwartz launched into a tirade against her, impugning her right to the revered title of "mother."

That was one reproach which the woman who has suffered the finger of scorn to be publicly pointed at her, could not brook. She had openly admitted her infidelity to her husband and confessed to the gravest charges of misconduct, but through it all she had never once yielded her right to mother the two children beyond the shadow of the blight of illegitimacy.

DASHED AT ATTORNEY.

All of the intense passion of a primitive mother surged up within her to resent this attack, and leaping from her chair she screamed at her accuser. Her face was distorted with rage and her fists clenched in anger as she shrieked her challenge to "stop, stop."

Her husband and Prosecutor Floyd [illegible] jumped to their feet to intercept her as she made a dash towards the attorney as if to attack him.

Undismayed by her sudden outbreak Mr. Schwartz thundered back a reply "Sit down; sit down. I'll stand for no interruptions, except legal objections." And he shook a menacing finger at the woman, who was protestingly forced back into her chair. Then she wilted and sobs shook her frame as she listened to the counsel continue his excoriation of her.

In an argument that sparkled with rhetorical pyrotechnics, Mr. Schwartz unmercifully flayed the mother and husband.

"Here is the unique spectacle," he [illegible] pointing his finger toward the professor and Mrs. Tiernan, "of a man and woman legally wedded, [illegible]ding together before the court [illegible] before the world united in their determination to cast blight upon [illegible] only child."

The professor cringed a bit under [illegible] caustic words. His wife's head was buried in her hands.

Doctor Refuses to Make Blood Test

Chicago, Sept. 27.—Dr. Albert Abrams, California specialist, has refused to make a private blood test to determine whether John Tiernan, Notre Dame law professor, is the father of his wife's baby boy, who Mrs. Tiernan says is the child of Harry Poulin, South Bend, Ind., haberdasher.

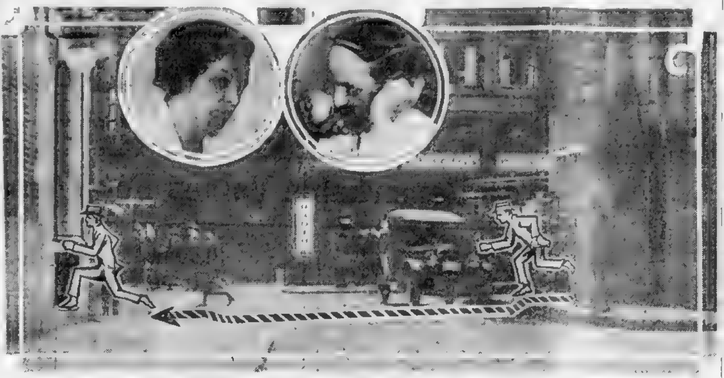
HOW SAFE ROBBER ELUDED CHASE



DISAPPEARS INTO ADAMS HOUSE AND VANISHES

SURPRISED IN ACT OF OPENING STORE SAFE

The police have spread a dragnet throughout the city for a man who attempted to rob the Deerfoot Farm Store at Avery and Tremont streets and then escaped. He was pursued by a crowd of excited people who witnessed his hasty exit from the store.

Dashing through the women's entrance to the Adams House on Mason street, the burglar darted into a closet and, after his pursuers had passed by, retraced his steps and disappeared in the direction of Tremont street.

Furnished with a meagre description of a well dressed man who had been loitering about the store for several days in search of a job as porter, the police are combing the West and North Ends for a man they believe responsible for the attempted robbery.

He is described as being of medium height, dark complexion and wearing a light brown [illegible] topcoat. He was surprised in the act of opening the safe in the store by the manager, Arthur Howe. Miss Lillian McDonald, an employe at the store, fainted when the robber dashed by her on his way to the street.

The manager thought it strange that such a well-dressed man should want a position as porter in the store. He had no position to offer him at the time but the young man continued to loiter about the place.

Dail Rejects Plan to Omit King in Treaty Oath

Dublin, Sept. 27. — The Dail rejected an amendment to the new Irish Constitution which proposed to eliminate reference to the King in the oath of allegiance by a vote of 41 to 16.

Kevin O'Higgins, Minister of Home Affairs, declared that the amendment practically amounted to a proclamation for a republic, while the government stood for the treaty which has the mandate of the people. He said that it would be impossible to omit the reference to the King if Ireland was to stand by the treaty.

FRELINGHUYSEN TO FEATURE DRY PLANK

Raritan, N. J., Sept. 27.—United States Senator Frelinghuysen, renominated by the Republicans of New Jersey, said today that prohibition would be the principal issue in his campaign against Governor Edward I. Edwards, Democratic senatorial nominee. "The vote cast for my opponent in the primaries, George L. Record, was largely a protest against prohibition," he said. He added that he did not expect a particularly hard fight against Governor Edwards, champion of the "wets."

FREE HUSBAND OF MRS. PEASE, HELD AS SUSPECT

DROWNING GIVEN AS CAUSE OF DEATH

Wounds on Woman's Neck May Have Been Self-Inflicted, Says Report

Arthur H. Pease of No. 145 Prescott avenue, Revere, today was discharged when arraigned before Judge Bosson in Chelsea Court on a charge of murder for the death of his wife, Sabra Maude Pease, whose body was found floating off Short Beach, Winthrop.

The dismissal of Pease, who has been held without bail, came after Chief of Police Dyer of Revere said "investigation shows death was due to self inflicted wounds," and there is "no evidence to connect Pease with the death of his wife."

Subsequently Patrick J. Lane, special justice of East Boston District Court, filed a report of the inquest with the clerk of the Superior Criminal Court. This said:

"Death was due to asphyxiation due to drowning. There were wounds of the neck which could have been self inflicted.

SOMERVILLE BOY IS KILLED BY AUTO

Thomas Hanley

Thomas Hanley, ten years old, son of Mrs. Mary Hanley of No. 7 Caldwell avenue, Somerville, was struck and almost instantly killed by an automobile on Washington street, near Beacon street, Somerville, within a short distance of his home. He was picked up after being struck and taken to the Cambridge Hospital, where he was pronounced dead on arrival.

Wheaton B. Byers, twenty-nine years of age, of Round Hill road, Lexington, operator of the machine was arrested.

Arraigned before Judge Farrell in Somerville Court, Byers waived the reading of the complaint and was held in $1,000 bail for hearing on October 3.

SOMERVILLE GIRL WEDS CAMERA MAN

Miss Theresa G. Gnecco of No. 26 [illegible] street, West Somerville, and Michael H. Lovezzola, newspaper photographer, a veteran of the naval aviation service, were married at 1:30 this afternoon in St. Anthony's Church, Somerville. GLYNN ASKS BETTER FIRE TRAFFIC RULES

The parking of automobiles in front of fire hydrants and the failure of vehicular traffic in the streets to quickly give right of way to fire apparatus responding to calls, has resulted in many accidents and delays, according to a statement sent to Mayor Curley today by Fire Commissioner Theodore A. Glynn. Commissioner Glynn requested the Mayor to take the matter up with the police commissioner and others interested. Mayor Curley will call a meeting of all of the city department heads, including the police commissioner, next week to take some action in the matter.

"Neither George nor I ever thought of keeping the arrival of beautiful, curly-haired Dorothy Helen.

ONCE ON STAGE.

"All my friends knew of the child. About a month ago George took the baby on the stage of a theatre he was in. He told the audience that it was his baby. And Dorothy — she's the loveliest, brightest little golden head in the world—cooed and threw kisses to the audience just as she is doing to the photographers now."

ANCIENTS ON FALL TRIP TO BERMUDA

Approximately 300 members of the Ancient and Honorable Artillery will leave Boston Saturday aboard the steamer Fort Hamilton for the 285th Fall field day, which will be celebrated by a trip to the Islands of Bermuda.

The Ancients will assemble at Faneuil Hall at noon and march behind Ives' Band to Pier 41, Hoosac Tunnel docks, City Square, Charlestown. They will sail at 1 o'clock. Included in the party will be Frederick W. Cook, Secretary of State, representing Governor Cox, Judge Thomas H. Dowd, the Rev. Dr. R. Perry Bush of Chelsea and Major-General Sir Edward Morrison, adjutant-general of the Canadian forces at Ottawa.

BOXER'S BIRTHDAY COSTS $130 IN FINES

It was not a happy day for Al, for—

Judge Bosson, in Chelsea Court, fined him $100 for operating an automobile while under the influence of liquor, $10 for being drunk, $10 for driving without his registration and $10 for driving without his license.

Walter Brown, brother-in-law of Frank Goodwin, State registrar of vehicles, testified to Sears' good character and said that he had not been drunk when arrested. Sears appealed.

Boston Prisoner Is Suspected in Murder of Salem Boy

John George, serving sentence in Charles street jail for assaulting a Jamaica Plain boy, is still under surveillance by the Salem police, who are investigating the brutal murder of twelve-year-old Edward McMahon.

George was originally sentenced to Deer Island. When the Salem police announced their intention of bringing witnesses to view him, the court authorities ordered the transfer to Charles street.

George admits having been in Salem two months ago, about the time that the McMahon boy was murdered. He refuses to give any information regarding himself, however.

"I'LL MAKE 'EM LIKE MY JAZZ," SAYS NAZARRO

Michele Nazzaro, professional bondsman, will give his fashionable neighbors of Metropolitan avenue, Roslindale, "something to talk about."

And, believe Mike, they never will stop talking.

For he is going to celebrate his twenty-fifth wedding anniversary, and celebrate it only as a Nazzaro can.

"They kicked—they had me in court when I had one band out to the house—well I am going to give two have a battle of music, the jazziest of jazz," and Mike smiled in pleasant anticipation.

"When? The night of October 10. The House of Nazzaro will entertain then, and royally."

Mike aroused the ire of Miss Grace Callowhill and her two sisters, scions of one of Boston's oldest and most exclusive families, with his last party. So they summoned forthwith Captain Clint Bowley's reserves. Came then court action.

Mike uttered his threat as he stood in the corridor of Roxbury Court today, when he appeared to face a default warrant for failing to appear yesterday in connection with an automobile complaint.

POPULAR CHELSEA GIRL IS ENGAGED

The parents of Miss Lillian Rosen of No. 71 Chestnut street, Chelsea, have just announced the engagement of their daughter to Samuel M. Corman of No. 110 Franklin avenue, Chelsea. The girl is a graduate of the Chelsea schools and is one of the most popular of the younger generation. Mr. Corman is one of the proprietors of the American Bag and Burlap Company. He is a member of the Chelsea Y. M. H. A. and has been active in athletics.

HUGGER ATTACKS WOMAN

Mrs. Russell Gowden Saved by Autoist as Assailant Tears Her Clothes

The third of vicious "hugger" attacks that have kept the neighborhood of Lexington street, Waltham, terrorized for the past two weeks, occurred when an unidentified man stepped from behind a clump of trees and threw his arms about Mrs. Russell Gowden of Hillside road, Waltham.

The "hugger" prefaced his attack by demanding Mrs. Gowden's purse. Frightened, she drew away and turned to run, when he reached out and seized her hand.

Then he swept her into his arms, throwing one hand over her mouth to prevent her from crying for help.

With the other hand he seized the neck of her gown and ripped it, in a frantic attempt to tear her clothes off.

FLEES APPROACHING AUTO.

As the two swayed back and forth on the sidewalk of Lexington street, near Cottage Farm road, an automobile swung round the corner and came towards them.

The "hugger" saw that the driver was slowing down to come to the woman's aid. Instantly releasing his hold on her, he fled down the street and vanished in the darkness.

Mrs. Gowden dropped to the ground in a half unconscious state. The driver took her home and notified the Waltham police.

TWO GIRLS ATTACKED.

Two weeks ago a little girl was seized and roughly manhandled before her assailant released her. A week later another girl was menaced by the man, but she managed to make her escape before she was injured.

A number of women have reported being followed by a skulking stranger who lurked in the shrubbery of the lonely road late at night to prey upon passing women. The police believe the same man is responsible for all of the attacks.

WIFE DRINKS WITH MAN, LAST STRAW

"It was more than I could stand, Your Honor, to come home and find my wife drinking with a strange man."

This was Martin E. Holland's explanation in East Boston court today for the mutual assault case between him and John Perry, marine fireman. Holland added that he found his wife, Abbie, and Perry at his Cross street home with a bottle of moonshine and several "empties." When the fight reached the street, Patrolman Thomas E. Griffin gathered in both men. Both were found guilty of assault, but Holland's case was filed, while Perry received a month.

SELECT GIRL FOR DUNGEON SOJOURN

Miss Sallie Coulter of No. 11 East Newton street was today selected by Dr. James B. Thornton as the most perfectly fit girl in Boston to undergo the "bravest woman in Boston" test of spending twenty-five hours in solitary confinement aboard the convict ship "Success," on exhibition at Warren bridge. Ruth Irving, Doris Lewis and Katherine Donovan were picked by the doctor as the best alternates, if for any reason Miss Coulter is unable or unwilling to undergo the test.

HUNDREDS OF WOMEN UNDERPAID

Mrs. Angela Maguire Denounces Certain Employers for Starvation Wages

"Today 1,454 women in unorganized labor in this State are not paid a living wage," said Mrs. Angela Maguire of Newton, a member of the Retail Store Board, working in connection with the minimum wage.

"At present there is a law whereby a minimum wage of $14 for women and children is recommended merely, and the 128 establishments who do not comply are advertised.

"The Legislature will vote upon whether the law shall be given teeth by being made enforceable, or be abolished.

"If wages are not to be held up by even the fear of being advertised," Mrs. Maguire continued, "they will drop to a starvation level, for labor is glutting the market, and all the work of the big department stores in Boston in building up a standard of living among their salesgirls, which cannot be too highly praised, will necessarily be in vain.

DRUDGES AT $10 A WEEK.

"It is essential that a minimum low wage shall be made mandatory for employers such as Woolworth's, the employers of scrubwomen, certain candy manufacturers, men's clothing factories and such businesses as are impervious to advertising of their non-compliance with the law, which would, of course, hurt the trade of a good department store.

"Working girls are unable to do anything more than merely exist on less than $14.

"The lives of girls in Woolworth's, who get on an average only $10, are pitiful. They are generally members of a large family forced out at an early age to work, and they have to drudge from morning till night.

"The proposed wage of $14 is a compromise between a budget prepared by the employee made out largely through information blanks and suggestions of the employers consider big enough. The girls want $16.75, which includes 50 cents recreation and 50 cents self improvement, no savings. Employers suggest $13.10. In the $14 agreed on nothing at all is allowed for recreation and 30 cents for incidentals is omitted also. Board and room are placed at $8. The girls set it at $9.50.

LOVE ONCE, BUT IT IS RAZORS NOW

James Pierce once loved Ethel Johnson, but there developed incompatibility of temper, or something.

James said something Ethel didn't like, so she punished him by sliding a razor blade across his hand, so James says.

James brooded over the way that woman "done him wrong," so he polished his brand new razor and went to Ethel's house, No. 232 West Canton street and there—

Well, Ethel, and her chum, Phyllis Donaldson, say he did unspeakable things to their nice silk "undies."

Judge Lourie, in Central Court, thought there should be further investigation, so he continued the case one week.

WORCESTER GIRL DIES IN THE CONGO

Worcester, Sept. 27.—A cablegram received here today from the African Inland Mission announced the death in the Belgian Congo September 21 of Miss Julia De Mason, a Worcester girl, who has been in the African mission field nearly two years.

Mother Hits Son's Attacker

MRS. R. C. CLOY
(Photo by Sarony)

"Nobody will strike my children and get away with it, and I don't believe that any mother who possesses real motherly love for her children would allow it," said Mrs. Jessie Cloy, wife of Robert C. Cloy of No. 31 Lambert street, Roxbury, mother of five children.

Mrs. Cloy was defending herself following a fracas in the Roxbury Court corridor, during which she is alleged to have severely beaten Edwin B. Dietrich, a janitor of the Hotel Lambert, No. 31 Lambert street. She sought to have Dietrich arrested on a charge of assaulting her ten-year-old son, Charles Cloy.

The assault on the boy is alleged to have taken place Saturday evening when Dietrich, according to Mrs. Cloy and others, struck the child. Mrs. Cloy appeared before Judge Ahern in the Roxbury Court to secure a warrant for Dietrich's arrest, but the court refused to issue one on the grounds that there was not sufficient evidence.

"After court adjourned and Mrs. Cloy was leaving the court room, followed by Dietrich, she is alleged to have turned around and struck Dietrich, punching him in the face and head, before police officers interfered.

Neighbors say Mrs. Cloy is a devoted mother to all of her five children. Charles is the youngest.

FINGERPRINTS MAY CONVICT 3 REVERE BOYS

Finger prints may send three eighteen-year-old boys to prison.

Police today took photographs of impressions found in the dust and on walls of Sternich Brothers' store, No. 208 Shirley street, Revere.

These will be compared with the fingers of Thomas J. Gilpatrick of No. 2 Orr square, Revere, William Cunningham of No. 22 Lafield street, Dorchester, and Dewey Rappucci of No. 36 Garfield avenue, Revere, and the results will be submitted to the Grand Jury.

Arresting officers say they found the three prisoners in a barn on Wall street, Revere, in possession of loot valued at $[illegible] taken from the store last night and which consisted of five dozen silk shirts, two dozen women's silk stockings and other articles.

ABSENT FROM DUTY, TRIO GET 6 MONTHS

SMUGGLE PLOTS ARE TRACED

Prohibition Navy Told Where to Find Liquor Laden Craft Off U. S.

The prohibition forces have inaugurated a new scheme to check the smuggling of liquor from Canada into this country. They now check up at the very source of the contraband, in Canada.

Two local dry sleuths left Boston on a mysterious mission. Two days later two American "tourists" reached St. Pierre, Canada, where it is believed most of the ships are outfitted with liquor destined ultimately for America.

The two sleuths, who registered in St. Pierre under the names "Adams" and "Hamlen," investigated every vessel that carried liquor.

RELAYED INFORMATION.

Then a description of the ship, its registry and cargo were relayed to prohibition agents all along the North Atlantic coast. Now as the rum runners leave their home port, the prohibition patrols are scouring the waters for them. Once sighted, the runners have little chance of discharging their cargoes.

The new scheme was started when the prohibition forces discovered that between 10,000 and 12,000 cases of liquor were being smuggled into the United States each week. The attempt to stop this traffic proved so laborious and costly, when every ship coming inside the three mile limit must be stopped, that a new plan became a necessity.

Prohibition Enforcement Director Elmer C. Potter would not deny today that two of his men were in Canada.

MAY EXTEND PLAN.

"We do not discuss the whereabout of any of our agents," he said. "However, the newspapers have taken a chance before and the newspapers seem to be pretty shrewd guessers."

If the scheme works successfully it is the purpose of the prohibition force to carry out the same plan elsewhere than in Canada. American prohibition agents will soon be assigned to Bermuda, Cuba and other points. It is not beyond a possibility that checkers may take up their posts at certain European ports.

Canada Tightens Up Border Booze Rules

Toronto, Sept. 27.—Another lock is about to be put on side door exits by which smuggler bootleggers have been able to peddle the output of Ontario distilleries in the United States.

The Provincial Attorney-General's office has asked for and has been promised a revision of regulations on liquor export.

Exporting houses will be required to put up a cash bond on every shipment as a guarantee that it shall be delivered outside of Canada. Failure within reasonable time to produce a receipt of delivery will result in confiscation of the bond.

Border officers also will be required to cease the alleged practice of facilitating smuggling operations by placing their services at the disposal of exporters at all hours. Shipments consigned to a border point must leave a wharf on a licensed steamer and clearances on motor-boats, which have been able to slip across international waters unobserved, will be forbidden.

CITY JUDGE SENDS CASE TO U. S. COURT

Judge Logan today declined jurisdiction in South Boston Court in the case of Benjamin Weiner, accused of operating four stills in his junk shop at No. 418 Dorchester avenue, South Boston. The stills were discovered when one caused a fire. The case was ordered to the Federal courts.

HARVARD SQUAD READY FOR OPENING GAME

By CHARLES E. PARKER

Some of our college young men take their book learnin' altogether [illegible]

The profs tell 'em, "Things equal to the same things are equal to each other," and when Saturday afternoon comes around they travel to some football yard and, noting the fact their team is composed of eleven men and the rival team boasts the selfsame number, they conclude things are preesackly fifty fifty.

On Saturday afternoon at the Harvard Stadium you can gamble with reasonable safety some [illegible] freshman or sonorous sophomore from Middlebury College will publicly advise the gridiron representatives of that school somewhat as follows:

"Go get 'em, Middlebury. They ain't no better than what you are. Don't let their red shirts fool you. They can only play 'leven men at a time."

At the Yale Bowl, Carnegie Tech [illegible]

[illegible]

And Yet at the Yale Bowl Last Week It Wasn't So

[illegible]

We don't know what Middlebury will offer, but we do know what it [illegible] last year.

Middlebury Team Last Year Had Three Big Games.

Almost everybody had a good word for the Middlebury team of 1921 [illegible] Harvard, West Point and Dart[illegible] mouth for the first three weeks of the Middlebury season.

[illegible] Dartmouth they went so far as to lead the Green 3 to 0 for the first two periods.

Request Games of Middlebury, Because of Showing

Because that Middlebury team furnished its big early-season opponents with something really worth [illegible] preliminary tests and gave [illegible] for their [illegible] Middlebury was begged for [illegible] by all the big fellers for this season and, although its big league [illegible] for this season are scattered [illegible] than was the case last [illegible] Dave Morey's team is facing a [illegible] as difficult as the [illegible] of 1921, with Harvard, [illegible] and Penn State on its [illegible] season list.

Harvard, we believe, is stronger [illegible] it was last season and Middlebury [illegible] to hold [illegible] to as small a score as in the last game, but knowing Dave Morey and his ability we [illegible] predict the little town from Vermont will be working for all it is worth from the start to the finish of the pastime.

VERMONT MAN HANGS HIMSELF IN BARN

Brattleboro, Vt., Sept. 27.—Frank Fifield of Cornish went to the barn of the farm where he made his home, placed a rope over one of the beams and, tying the other end around his neck, jumped off and broke his neck.

(Filene's—Apologies to B. C. B.)

Othello and Hamlet
Aren't the only tragedies
Many of us see.
Take the man
Who about this time
Digs out a heavy suit
And finds some moth
Has played the villain
To the trousers.
Or consider the man
In a strange city
With the stores closed
And one suit of clothes
About the time
He discovers the Tailor
Has left a hot iron
Standing on the pants
While he answered the 'phone.
Or that every day occurrence:
The man whose trousers
Have taken on
The general aspects
Of a mirror,
While the coat and vest
Are perfectly new.
Or the minor tragedy
Of the man
Lugging a tremendous bag
On a two-day trip
And finding after all
That the suit he carried
Got so wrinkled
He couldn't wear it.
Or the Domestic Tragedy
"The Wrecked Dinner Party"
Because wifey wouldn't go
Unless hubby dressed better.
Or the semi-comedy
Of the man
With a closet-full
Of coats and vests
Half worn out
While the trousers
Are all worn out.
Tragic as they are,
They are more tragic still
When you consider that The Hero
"Two Trouser Suit"
Stands in the wings
Ready to dash in
And save the day—
And it's up to YOU
To give the cue.
WE THANK YOU.

LEAN YEAR FOR HUB BALL FANS BUT FAT ONE FOR MAGNATES

FRAZEE AND GRANT BOTH MADE THEIR BIT

By NICK FLATLEY.

Boston goes to press, as you might say, in a couple of days with [the] worst baseball season in history. The well-known national pastime has been knocked for a line of Iberian Igloos in these parts, and the future, especially in the American League, is as bright as a bucket of pitch.

Fans wonder how the magnates can stand the gaff, no crowds, no excitement nor anything. But, strange as it may seem, both Boston clubs will finish on the good side of the ledger for 1922, and with a fat margin of profit, too.

One would imagine that an owner, knocking off dividends with a losing outfit, would shoot after the bigger rakeoff that a winner brings, but the boys seem to be content to take what's coming, and [illegible] with the future of the game.

[illegible] the case of the [illegible] President Grant still has [illegible] for Hugh McQuillan, [illegible] trades may prove [illegible] American League [illegible] Great strength [illegible] been whittled down [illegible] nothing left but a [illegible] club, an aggregation without a star or any [illegible] prove a popular attraction.

Big League Baseball, Here, Has No More Attraction

Which, of course, every fan knows just as well as he knows [illegible] big league baseball here, no [illegible] has any more attraction than [illegible] down [illegible].

With nothing left to sell, the club [illegible] go onto the market, but it's doubtful if anybody can be discovered [illegible] sufficiently [illegible] to [illegible] with more than half the price that will be asked. The only hope seems to rest in the League stepping in and buying Frazee out, for his club has become a dependent one [illegible] must be supported by the rest of the League. Boston fans have [illegible] this season that even the [illegible].

A seventh [illegible] club in a close race can just about break even by collections on the road. With some good trading [illegible] the owner can tuck quite a [illegible] shekels in the sock. With every [illegible] sold out, the prospects are not good.

It takes something like $100,000 to run a big league ball club for a season in these expensive times. Of course star aggregations like the [illegible] and Yanks, will run away [illegible] this figure but it's more than generous for the average team.

Four Star Players Sent Away During Winter

During the Winter the Red Sox [illegible] Joe Bush, Sam Jones and Everett Scott to the Yankees, sent Stuffy McInnis to the Indians. In cash this transaction netted at least $[illegible],000 [illegible] Joe [illegible]gan came to the Duffys as well, and when the race grew tough [illegible] to the Yanks [illegible] Fall [illegible] $[illegible] [illegible] Red Sox [illegible].

It takes some $[illegible] coming [illegible] from [illegible], saving only $[illegible] to be [illegible] for an even break for the [illegible]. And a good many [illegible] those that figure were gathered in [illegible] when the race was hot and excitement bubbling all Summer.

It's a mortal cinch that the Boston American profits for the year will come close to fluttering around the six figure list. A million dollars worth of good will was lost by the same token, but that's neither here nor there.

It Has Been Same Story for Long Time

It has been the same story for quite a stretch. A few years ago Babe Ruth and Carl Mays were shipped to the Yankees and the Boston club collected much more than a year's expenses for the pair [illegible]. The following season Waite Hoyt and Wallie Schang were shipped along, and the fall money therefore was mostly velvet.

A very profitable business while the stars were around. Now, there's nobody left but Muddy Ruel who could bring anything like the regular mazuma. With nothing going out and everything coming in the only wonder is that the club has taken such a long time to sink to the cellar. Connie Mack running a ball club the same way had a few years start on the Red Sox, which probably explains it.

When Cornelius sells Ed Rommel he will be right back on his old trail. Any pitcher who can win 27 games with a seventh place club is worth plenty of jack with the wealthy owners loving pennants.

The Braves profits for the year were assured when the McQuillan deal went through. Owner Grant had a dismal season at home. The weather ruined his Saturday and holiday dates, when he had a chance to get the crowds, and injuries wrecked his ball club. But with the announced price received for Handsome Hughey, and a big guarantee assured from football at Braves Field during the Fall George hasn't had to worry much about digging down.

He did a good business on the road, as five clubs were in the race all the way and naturally were enthusiastically supported. Sundays in New York and the West almost provide enough to carry a team through [illegible]. Owner George has promised to spend his New York bankroll and thus far he has not gone through with his promises.

Boston Fans May Yet See Some Big League Baseball

St Louis, Mo., Sept. 27.—George Sisler, acclaimed the most valuable player in the American League and Rogers Hornsby, who leads the National League in hits and home runs, have revealed plans to go barnstorming after the close of the season.

George Sisler

Sisler is organizing a team to tour the New England States, while Hornsby has signed up with Milton Stock, also of the Cardinals, who is organizing a post season aggregation.

Johnny Gavan of the Cardinals, will tour Japan with another team being organized for that purpose.

PIDGEON JOINS BUNKER HILL CELTICS

By ART CURLY.

Manager Eddie Roberts of the Bunker Hill Celtics is highly elated with the progress his eleven is making and believes that it will soon be at the top of the division.

Mike Pidgeon

Proof that the Celtics are improving is shown by their decisive victory over the strong [illegible] team, the same outfit that held Charlestown to a draw two weeks ago.

Mike Pidgeon, considered the best centre in the district and surely the greatest goal-getter, will be a star starter with the Celts from now on. Last season Mike was down in Fall River trying his luck with fast company, but this Sullivan square favorite just can't stay away from his home stamping grounds.

Ring Results

Johnny Drew of Worcester easily outpointed Steve Gustin of South Boston in ten rounds.

Mickey Green of Worcester won the decision over Tommy Corbley of Gloucester in ten rounds and Kid Ledger of Worcester defeated Billy Shine of Quincy in eight rounds.

LYNN'S ELEVENS ARE FIGHTING CONDITIONS

By FRED C. LANE

Coach William Joyce, of Lynn Classical School, who has seen the rise and fall of interest in that city for [illegible] years, says that interest in the [illegible] sport is at the lowest point since his debut as physical trainer [illegible].

[illegible] Joyce bases his opinion on the intolerable conditions that exist at the Sanderson avenue playground which serves as the training camp of the Lynn Classical football team. No goal posts have been erected, [illegible] one of the most important features in developing a team, has not been marked. Although these [illegible] exist, Coach [illegible] is putting up a fight against odds to whip his [illegible] into shape for the opening of the North Shore League circuit Saturday.

Practically the same state of affairs exists at Meadow Park, used by Coach George Sexton of Lynn English [illegible]. How either of these two coaches has kept the Lynn teams on the athletic map under such adverse conditions puzzles visiting coaches who play in Lynn.

According to Coach Joyce, lack of money is a poor excuse for such neglect by the Park Department which receive 7 per cent. of the gross receipts taken in at all high school contests.

Not only does the high school athletic treasury contribute towards the upkeep of the playgrounds, but a large percentage is taken from the two semi-pro ball clubs of the city who have been patronized in big league fashion this past season.

For years there has been much talk of erecting a stadium in Lynn. Every so often this time-worn issue is brought to light, but passes by without action.

The possibility of developing a championship football team at Lynn this season looks exceptionally bright, but unless conditions are improved quickly all hopes of accomplishing such a feat must be abandoned.

WILLIE CORBETT NATURALLY BUSY

The fact that the college season has started once more is merely another reason why Willie Corbett is keeping busy [illegible] the ring. Willie is a student at the Harvard School of Business Administration and is earning money to pay for his college expenses. So he's boxing Freddy Williams of Dorchester at the Naumkeag A. A. of Salem Friday night. The boys are evenly matched and should furnish a lively tussle.

NEW HARVARD COACH AT RIVER TOMORROW

The returning members of the first two varsity crews of last year have been ordered to report at the Newell Boat Club to get the glad hand from their new mentor, Frank Miller, the Philadelphia coach, tomorrow afternoon.

The Harvard candidates for the cross country team reported at the locker building yesterday. The retired coach, Bill Bingham, was on hand to start the ball rolling.

Tomorrow the candidates for the track team will invade Soldiers Field for the first practice of the 1922 season.

EXETER TO OPEN WITH HARVARD SECONDS

Exeter, N. H., Sept. 27.—Exeter's football [illegible] numbering [illegible] three players is rounding into form for the opening game with Harvard second on October 4. New material is [illegible] good form, these being Walter Pine of Natick, Zarakov of Cambridge, Brandenburg of Pineville, Ky., as backs, and Mansfield of Haverhill in the line.

[illegible] weighs 165 pounds [illegible]

[illegible] Mansfield [illegible] may be [illegible] the coming games.

Those [illegible] the squad are Captain [illegible] Adams, Aiken, [illegible] Bowser, Bradley, [illegible] Charlesworth, [illegible] Downs, Elliott, [illegible] Fisher, French, Greenman, [illegible] Hyde, [illegible] McDaniel, MacPhee, [illegible] Miller, Otto, [illegible] Prendergast, Pine, Richards, [illegible] Stone, Stoats, Swede, Taylor, Taliaferro, [illegible] Trapp, Wells, Wilson, Wortham and Zarakov.

EDDIE MACK PILOT OF DONAHUE

Young Donahue, South End featherweight, has joined Eddie Mack's stable of boxers. Donahue, a kid of nineteen, is one of the most promising youths of his pounds in New England. He is a fine boxer, and is also able to walk to close quarters and whang away with an opponent.

Eddie Mack

Mack, very naturally, has started to put steam into Donahue's drive for glory, and he wants the world to know that his protege would like nothing better than a tussle with Chick Suggs, New England featherweight champion.

PAL REED TAKES ON TOUGH FOE

Pal Reed, Natick middleweight, will step under the [illegible] once more when he quarrels with Johnny Wolgast, brother of Ad Wolgast, former world's lightweight champion at the Casino A. C. of Lynn next Monday night.

Pal Reed

Reed recently returned to the ring after a long layoff and gave Lou Bogash [illegible] hard engagement.

Natick Pal will receive plenty of opposition from Wolgast, but if he wins he will be able to step out with the big money once more.

DUNN DENIES THAT HE SOLD BENTLEY

New Haven, Ct., Sept. 27.—Manager Jack Dunn of Baltimore and [illegible] Weiss, of New Haven, flatly denied that there was any truth in the report that John McGraw of the Giants has been here to buy Pitcher Jack Bentley of the Orioles.

Dunn asserted that McGraw had [illegible] for the [illegible] and said he has several from Major League magnates and expects to [illegible] of Bentley after the post season series in which Baltimore is engaged.

ANOTHER AMATEUR SHOW FRIDAY

The second annual boxing tournament conducted under the auspices of the St. Joseph T. A. S. will take place at Commercial Hall, Bowdoin square, Friday night.

A host of entries have been received in all of the five classes, especially in the 135 and 147 lb. division. Competition will be held in the following classes: 112, 118, 126, 135, and 147 lbs.

PEPPER MARTIN WINS OVER SULLIVAN

New York, Sept. 27.—Pepper Martin proved [illegible] more that he was the master of "Kid" Sullivan. In one of the fiercest twelve-round battles ever fought around this city, Pepper defeated his old rival. The contest was held at Ebbets Field, Brooklyn.

It was a regular Martin-Sullivan fight; one that furnished all the thrills a fan could desire. Martin showed his bulldog spirit by fighting an uphill battle.

In the third round Sullivan managed to land two hard rights that upset Pepper. Martin is a fighter that must be knocked down to make him fight. He came back like a [illegible] with a right.

From the [illegible] round on Martin was [illegible]. He beat Sullivan [illegible] by terrific blows. This method robbed Sullivan of his [illegible] Martin wanted. It was a battle that

Wild Rush Started for World Series Game Tickets

New York, Sept. 27.—A demand for World Series tickets as brisk as that of last year, when all attendance records were broken, is being made upon the offices of the New York Giants, now that that club has clinched the National League pennant.

The Giants will dispose of reserved tickets for the first, third and fifth games; the Yankees, in the event that they win in the American League, the second, fourth and sixth games.

Reservations for the seventh game, if necessary, will be held in abeyance.

The scale of prices ranged from box seats at $6.50 to the unreserved section of the grand stand at $3.30 and the bleachers at $1.10. Reserved sections of the grand stand are selling for $5.50

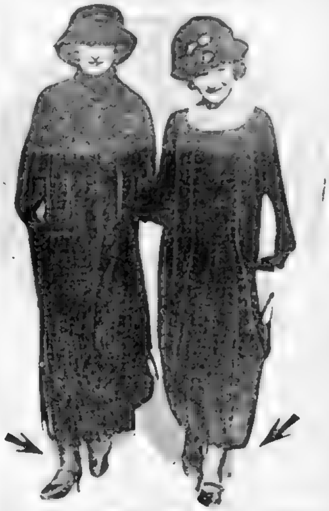
SAMUEL ADAMS NEVER WALKED DOWN SCHOOL STREET ARRAYED like these men, but the fiery old patriot doubtless would have been at the head of the procession if it had been held in his day. This picture shows the color bearers in the parade of the Samuel Adams celebration. The insets are (top) James F. Seats, chief of staff, and Wm. H. Doyle, commander of the Mass. Department of the American Legion, who was chief marshal of the parade. Mayor Curley reviewed the parade in front of City Hall.



THEY MAY BE WEARIN' 'EM HIGHER IN HAWAII, But They're Comin' Down In Boston! If not in price, at least in length. Greater Boston's fairest are slowly but surely yielding to the Parisian insistence for long skirts. These two fashionbly dressed women were snapped at random on Tremont street, showing the new ankle length skirts. College and school girls, however, refuse to wear them long.

SH-H-H-H-! — FOOTBALL Stars! Here's a secret that'll make you a Charlie Brickley, and then you'll surely have a kick coming to you. Didja ever notice that star pigskin kickers go through identically the same motions as a talented dancer? Except, if the facts were known, the dancer can kick quicker and with greater accuracy than the gridiron favorite. Kathleen Mahoney, pretty Boston dancer, says that every football player could become a star if he would only—get this fellas—take up classic dancing. Roscoe Fitts, Harvard's great punter, shown above, would be a greater player than he is if he only cavorted a bit with Dame Terpsichore, says Kathleen, who is showing the Crimson lad how to kick. Note that Miss Mahoney's foot is over her head.

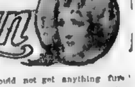
Antiquity of Ocean Travel

THE records of Aegean civilization point to the great antiquity of sea travel. Neolithic settlements excavated in Crete are believed to have been established by tribes from North Africa prior to 10,000 B. C.

Man and Maid

By Elinor Glyn



START THIS NEW STORY TODAY

Sir Nicholas Thormonde, a wealthy Englishman, wounded and blinded in one eye in action, starts writing his diary in Paris while the war is still on. He is sick of life. The war has robbed it of all that a young man can find of joy. He tries to amuse himself in the company of several women friends, who, he feels, seek his company for his money and not for the love he craves. He starts to write a book and hires a typist, Miss Sharp. He begins to fall in love with her.

Now Go On With the Story

MISS SHARP grew animated as we discussed things, and once unconsciously took off her glasses. It was like the sun coming out after days of storm clouds. Her beautiful blue eyes. My heart "gave a bound" (I believe that is the way to express what I mean).

[illegible]

I [illegible] that I might write the [illegible] of a book [illegible] the beginning [illegible]

[illegible] not get [illegible] take an interest in [illegible]. This thought kept [illegible] and I was silent for some [illegible]. I was weighing [illegible].

Her [illegible] interrupted my thoughts.

"The [illegible] chair has the first of [illegible] knotted fringes [illegible] was saying.

I had [illegible] of the Beaded chair [illegible] not recorded [illegible].

How [illegible] could she have known [illegible]

[illegible]

"You have never seen it yourself?"

"No—I have never been in England."

"Never been in England!"

I was [illegible].

[illegible]

The [illegible] she said [illegible] that she is a [illegible] lady [illegible] to [illegible] people of our world [illegible] who know [illegible] and its great [illegible] well [illegible] knew [illegible] certain [illegible] are. The very phrasing of her sentences is the phrasing of our shibboleth and not the phrasing of the [illegible].

And [illegible] dressed [illegible] for [illegible]. It is [illegible]

Once she took off her glasses. It was like the sun coming from behind a cloud.

[illegible] to where the few [illegible] for the [illegible] to the day.

[illegible] question her [illegible] the order as a matter [illegible] is very [illegible] and [illegible] after [illegible]

[illegible]

I believe if you will give me your help I shall be able to [illegible]

[illegible]

[illegible] most of the decent people [illegible]. I ventured to say.

[illegible] lots of their souls are not vulgar, only their environment has caused their outward self-expression to seem so [illegible] get below the pompous [illegible] in France, for instance, the more delightful you find the spirit and I expect it is the same in England. It is the pretentious aspiring would-bes who are vulgar—and [illegible] with them."

"Yes, pretty well."

"If it is not a frightfully impertinent question, how old are you, Miss Sharp?" I felt that she could not [illegible] twenty-[illegible] after this conversation.

[illegible] the second smile I [illegible]

"On the twentieth of October I shall be twenty-four."

"Where on earth did you learn all your philosophy of life in the [illegible]

[illegible] which teaches us [illegible] we are not half [illegible] if it is diffi[illegible]

[illegible] people are like [illegible] sitting nearest the [illegible]

[illegible] try to learn anything [illegible] me through Miss [illegible]

[illegible] I have [illegible] in [illegible] I did not add [illegible] I [illegible] and respected her [illegible]

[illegible] she said.

[illegible] teach me?"

[illegible] impossible?

[illegible]

[illegible] of her mouth. It [illegible]

I could not get anything further out of her because the waiters came in and out after the courses—and so I did not have any success.

After lunch I suggested as it had cleared up that we should go at least as far as the parterre, and sit under the shadow of the terrace. The flower beds are full of [illegible] now, the ancient glories departed. Miss Sharp followed my bath chair—and with extreme diligence kept me to the rearranging of the first chapter. For an hour I watched her darling small face whenever I could. A sense of peace was upon me. We are certainly on the first rung of the ladder of friendship—and presently—presently—if only I could keep from annoying her in any way!

When we had finished our task she rose.

"If you don't mind, as it is Saturday, I have promised Burton [illegible]"—and she looked at him, seated on a chair beyond earshot enjoying the sun—"to do up the accounts and prepare the cheques for you to sign. So I will go in now and begin."

I wanted to say "Damn the accounts"—but I let her go—I must play the tortoise in this game, not the hare. She smiled faintly—the third smile—as she made me a little bow, and walked off.

After a few paces she came back again.

"May I ask Burton for the [illegible] I lent you on Thursday?" she said. "No one [illegible] with them [illegible]"

I was delighted at this. I would have been delighted at anything which kept her with me an extra minute.

I watched her as she disappeared down towards the Reservoirs with longing eyes. Then I must have dozed for a while because it was a quarter to five when I got back to my sitting room.

And when I was safely in my [illegible] there was a knock on the door and [illegible] with a [illegible] in her hand.

Desert Love

by Joan Conquest

LA BELLE, a rank cross-breed of Tunisian and French with a dash of Arabian, was the one good part of a bad debt which overwhelmed Ahmed when he had inadvertently over-reached himself.

Her looks were passable, lithe [illegible] with a faint hint of [illegible] and a wonderful [illegible] her non-educated state and [illegible] material [illegible] her ambition was superb. It knew no [illegible] it saw no [illegible].

Born in a kennel in Tunis, she had [illegible] and [illegible] fought her way to the upper reaches of the [illegible] in faith, [illegible] it dancing for a mean [illegible] her strangely seductive body for a piastre or so, settling her quarrels with a knife [illegible] coarse crisp [illegible] hair, with one [illegible] before her [illegible] chief [illegible] the explanation of which [illegible] would [illegible]

[illegible]

[illegible] to be used as a lure to the [illegible] fresh arrived [illegible] French temper was as [illegible] when, as part payment of a debt, she found [illegible] to a [illegible] whose [illegible] was A[illegible]

[illegible]

[illegible] eyes brightened, [illegible] to her feet and [illegible] on the opposite [illegible] the [illegible]

[illegible] as she [illegible] from [illegible] gauze [illegible] covered in [illegible] her [illegible] way hast thou wasted precious moments? Why has thou impeded my chance by infringing the great man? Out of my way, [illegible]!"

And as she fled precipitately from the room, he caught [illegible] by the throat and flung him against the wall with the ease of muscle trained to the last point.

"Cow," exclaimed Ali Assan at the apparition in the doorway, with the [illegible] brown body with long thin brown arms stretched down stiff as ramrods to the sides, and then, [illegible], as she suddenly [illegible] and again stood still with [illegible] eyes fixed on the host, who looked at her for an instant and looked away again to the far corner, as he indifferent [illegible].

And then La Belle danced for all she was worth and for all she knew [illegible] the guest watched in [illegible] and the host took [illegible] notice.

[illegible] and nearer [illegible] odor of the insufferable [illegible] perfume of which the [illegible] is musk, suddenly struck the [illegible] of the man for whom she danced, bringing a slight frown to his face, and causing him to [illegible] raise his right hand, which, as perhaps the reader may not know, is an oriental sign of appreciation.

A flash of triumph swept across the face of the woman who was absolutely on the wrong tack, as she sidled so near that her bare limbs almost touched the flowing cloak which swept round the man. His mind was full of his exquisite, delicate, tantalizing, fastidious wife, his body ached for her, his soul fainted for even a touch of her little hand, so that once again he raised his right hand as though to sweep away some pestilential insect from his path, just one little careless gesture which proved a woman's undoing.

Back bent La Belle, and still farther back until her evil face was on a level with that of the man she was trying to subjugate, and when for an instant his eyes rested on hers, which peered at him from the strange angle of her upside down position, she whispered one little word.

And then a great fury suddenly blazed in Hahmed's eyes, a sudden storm of hate swept across the stern face, as his hand steel strong closed fiercely about the long thin neck.

"Thou daughter of gutter dogs," he whispered, so low that the words were hardly caught by Ali 'Assan, who with fingers twining uncontrollably in his white garment, sat petrified by the suddenly arisen storm. "Thou essence of evil, go back to the devil who spawned thee."

There was a choked gurgling cry as the hand closed tighter, a little click like the closing of a [illegible] the body of the [illegible] into the middle [illegible] whilst Hahmed [illegible] his hands [illegible] of Achmed, who [illegible] his [illegible] on his [illegible]

[illegible] O! thou [illegible] and throw it to [illegible]

Whereupon Achmed gathered good [illegible] of dust from the [illegible] to his [illegible] even then thinking [illegible] a [illegible] good [illegible] repre[illegible]

"Let this serve thee as a lesson, thou [illegible] of A[illegible] truth," spoke Hahmed in a voice as caressing as that of a woman, "and teach thee to acquire property which does honor to thy house. Camels, a male and female, shall be sent in payment for that for which thou hast not paid one piastre.

"Breed with them so that the milk refresh the traveler, and the hair spun soft covering for their bed and fail me not again, for behold when I strike it is as the lightning which blasts the tree."

And the two men stalked silently from the scene of the tragedy, leaving Achmed rubbing his hands in glee with intervals of removing particles of dust from his eyes and mouth, whilst his virago of a first wife ambled in to ascertain the proceeds of the evening, an account of which caused her to raise dirty hands to Heaven and praise Allah, before she ambled out again, contemptuously kicking the dead body en passant, which [illegible] to [illegible] of her [illegible] to [illegible] had [illegible]

The [illegible] the [illegible] had not changed [illegible] a [illegible]

The palms [illegible] Arab standing [illegible] in breeze in the [illegible] of the palms [illegible] he [illegible] and [illegible] until dawn.

"Allah," and the words were [illegible] her back to [illegible] I have watched [illegible] months and [illegible] even in [illegible] Arab in [illegible] a lowland [illegible] woman's [illegible] her [illegible]

"[illegible] will draw her [illegible] will make [illegible] for her return [illegible] soft white [illegible] and I [illegible] to fear that she [illegible] have [illegible] them in her flight.

"[illegible] this time there shall be no escape."

The long brown hand stretched out as if to seize and held the slender fingers [illegible] but with a grip of steel as though up on the whiteness of some woman's throat.

"Mary" ROMANCE OF A BOSTON BUSINESS GIRL

By Elenore Meherin

Start This Story Today

MARY KELLY wins the post of private secretary to HALL DAWSON, a dynamic promoter with offices in Water street. She instinctively fears him. After the conclusion of a big deal he calls her his mascot and gives her a check for $100, which she accepts with misgivings. Reassured by Dawson, however, she plunges into her work, dreaming of the day she will be his partner. Mary goes to see the parade of the returning Yankee Division and meets PAT SULLIVAN, her childhood sweetheart. JACK MAHONEY, a young millionaire, declares his love for her. Pat takes Mary riding and she realizes she loves him only. She receives a letter of proposal from Mahoney and answers it with a refusal. Pat has a row with Dawson. Mary sits for her portrait to Allan Bruce. Dawson insults her at his house and Mrs Dawson orders her out. She receives a letter from Pat telling her he loves her. She gets a new job.

"MY wife was furious when I failed to get a good likeness of her," continued Bruce. "I couldn't help it. She insisted on talking to me—incessantly, as I worked. I could do nothing.

"Can you think of anything more absurd than that to wreck a man's life?" He wasn't laughing now. I never saw any one more serious.

"It wasn't only that, surely?"

"That started it. I did a picture of a Chinese girl. It was one of the best things I ever did. It made her jealous. She accused me of loving the girl. She said I didn't want to finish her portraits. After that every time I had a model pose she would come to the studio and sit as I painted. She would talk. It wasn't her fault—she couldn't help it. I didn't know what it was that bothered me. I thought I was losing the gift. Then I begged her not to come to the studio, and we quarreled. She followed me. The other fellows called her the 'mother.' If I went out to sketch, she came with me. I grew to dread the sound of her voice. It made me nervous. It made me brutal. Then she would cry . . ."

Suddenly he stopped, the smile spread to his mouth.

"Life is grotesque, Mona." He put out his long, slim hands, took mine and drew me to my feet. "I thought I knew love. I didn't. I met you sixteen years too late."

"No, don't say that," I could scarcely speak. He drew me to him, his face, serious, full of pain.

"Don't say it. It isn't too late."

Allan Bruce was no longer the figure of romance, wandering in far places, whipped restlessly by a strange, incomprehensible Fate.

He was but a man running away from himself, a man tortured and rendered incapable by the petty, sordid goods of commonplace experience.

He no longer held me with his bizarre fascinations. I saw him a reality, suffering, human, blundering like the rest of us, and I was drawn to him in an overwhelming rush of pity and a longing to help.

He sat before the fire, talking, not eloquently, not with a brilliant dash, with long pauses, admissions, half withdrawn before they were uttered. His face looked young—helpless and appealing—the way Pat's had that night he begged me not to go to Dawson. He was years older than I and yet I felt as though I might have been his mother.

I reached over and put my hand on his, but I couldn't speak, for I was crying. It recalled him. He jerked his head and stood up, laughing.

"Don't worry about me, Mona. I'm not worth it. It's so easy to blame others for our shortcomings. Come next Saturday and I'll finish that first sketch. You might like to keep it."

"You're not going away? You'll finish the picture of the 'Storm'?"

"So you will save me?" He was all mockery again. "All right, I'll finish it."

I went to the studio directly from the shipping company without waiting to eat lunch. Bruce met me at the door, his face so white, so set it looked like marble, with his eyes striking angry yellow light across it.

"Come in, Mona," he said without looking at me. "Sit down, quick."

He had the small canvas on an easel. The big picture was shoved a little behind it. I went over to look at it. He blocked me.

"Won't you sit down, please? I'm in a hurry." I looked at him, hurt, amazed, my chin trembling. He turned his head away. "I don't want you to see it."

"Why? You didn't change it after I left? You didn't spoil it?"

He didn't answer me. I ran over to it. And then I drew back horror-stricken, dumb. A big smear, running across the centre of the canvas, blotted out the hands. The face and the upper part of the body were untouched.

He stood beside me. "Don't look at it Mona," he said softly. "It doesn't matter anyway."

"Why did you do such a thing?"

"I?" Then he shrugged his shoulders. "What of it, anyway?"

"Who did it?" I was so angry I didn't look at him. I almost feared to trust my voice.

"An accident."

"Rest a while," he said, his voice mechanical. I walked over to the window. The light was growing yellow.

Then I went back and sat down again. He seemed dissatisfied, angry. He was smearing out what he had done. Then he was taking quick, nervous strokes. I began to count the motions.

"Hands lighter, please. Not so stiff."

I relaxed them, for the first time conscious of the strain that made me sit erect, rigid. He seemed more pleased, working with triumphant assurance.

Allan drew me to him

The light was almost gone. There was a sort of spell in the room. He was standing back, looking at the canvas, his eyes shining. He was getting dim, receding. I could hardly see him. Strange echoes boomed in my ears.

"Mona, beloved!" He caught me in his arms. I seemed to be borne on wings. Then I was resting in the big chair and he was kneeling on the floor chafing my hands, kissing them, a string of kisses from my wrist to my elbow. I sat up ashamed, trying to smile. "Rest!" He held my hands, pressing them, looking at me with eyes that no longer mocked, but were humble, tender.

"I forgot you," he said softly. "I kept you there for hours. I thought only of myself—my work."

I shook my head. "I never failed in my life before. How silly! I didn't eat any lunch, hardly any breakfast. I'm just plain hungry."

He brought me some tea.

"Do you know that you sat there for four hours, Mona? There isn't a model in the country who would have done it!"

"Did you finish it?"

"Look!"

The smear was gone, the hands, clasped, rested listlessly as though they were a forgotten part of the body. They seemed more appealing to me than they had before.

"They're better—they look more unhappy."

"Yes! Do you know why?" He was watching me, holding me with that vivid gaze. "Your heart is in them, Mona, your beautiful, gorgeous heart. I never could have done it except for that.

"Don't be unhappy about it," he added hastily, cynical again, laughing. "No woman ever commanded me before. Now you will have to come tomorrow if you want the other sketch, for I'm going away."

"You are! You won't stay and paint? You're just going to throw everything up and you know you can do better work every day. Even that you thought it was perfect; you didn't think you could ever equal it and now you have surpassed it! I think it's cowardly to quit."

For a while he said nothing.

"I am a coward, Mona. There are some things I can't stand. I won't stand." The bitter, harsh laugh that was so unpleasant jarred roughly. "I nearly committed murder last night. My wife came to pay her respects. She wanted to move in here; to try over again. Think of it—with eleven years of hatred between us; eleven years—sixteen years! She begged, she entreated, she cried. No woman ever cried the way she does. It goes through me. I picked up my hat to leave and then she slapped her hands on the palette table and did that! She would have smeared it all, but I'm stronger than she is. I would have killed her if she had!"

Veins stood out on his white forehead. His voice was thick with angry passion. "I would have killed her."

Ma stood at the door, her soft gray hair fluttering in curls about her forehead, her hands clasped. She wore her purple "tea gown" and she smiled at us.

It was a Sunday afternoon. Bruce had not left as soon as he expected. Now he had come to take me for a ride in the borrowed car.

"Oh, I wish we could take her with us," I said.

"Get your hat, little mother, you are coming with us." Bruce never asked, he ordered.

"No, no," she shook her head. "You young folks go by yourselves. I couldn't leave Robert alone."

"You're coming! We'll take him, too."

Dad was dozing in the Morris chair.

"Wake up, Robert, put on a collar, we're going out." Ma shook him, her voice singing.

He sat up, startled and began to grumble.

"Hush up!" She gave him a little shove and he stood up, stretching.

I ran into ma's room and got out her suit. "Just put it over the kimono, ma. It takes too long to change."

"No, Mary. Get out my best waist. I'm going right or I'm not going at all."

When she was ready she turned to dad, looking at him as though she were but a girl. "How do I look?" she asked. She always did that when they went out together.

"I'd like to drive them up to the studio and paint them," Bruce said. "The picture wouldn't need any title. Every one would understand it."

I wish he had done it.

It was nothing but a little closed Ford, but they sat in the back seat as though they were the king and queen in a royal procession.

"I'm glad you thought of that, Mona. I haven't had such a lark in years," Bruce shrugged his shoulders, looking down at me and speaking low. "I thought I'd killed that off long ago."

"What?"

"The God bless our home nerve."

"You might as well be dead all over if that was gone," I said, hoping he was not going to get brilliant and say sparkling, shallow things.

"Half of us are nothing but shadows anyway, that remain after the living presence is destroyed." He turned suddenly to me. "Where do you want to go, out the Mohawk Trail?"

She blushed. "I think that would be lovely."

"We could decorate the whole house for Christmas!" ma exclaimed in a sudden ecstacy as we went along in a tree-arched drive past the forest preserve. Allan stopped the car and both of us got out and climbed into a little hollow and stripped shrub after shrub. The berries were polished and red as blood. Ma didn't often express wishes to find them granted at once. They were usually to be fulfilled "next year."

We didn't have bowls and pitchers enough to put the berries in. Every corner was bright with the green, shiny leaves and ma made wreaths for the windows.

"A more gracious young man I never met," she said that night after he had gone. "Do you like him, Mary?"

"Yes; he's different."

"You don't hear from Pat any more, Mary?" she asked softly, as though afraid to intrude. "I can't understand it. He loved you. I would have been proud to have had him for a son. You haven't been yourself since he left. Why don't you tell me, Mary?"

"He thought Dawson was in love with me, ma," I said suddenly, unable to bear the pained, anxious look in her eye. "He wanted me to quit. I couldn't. He went away angry, not believing me."

For a while she didn't speak.

"He will come back, Mary," she said at last. "Men are hot tempered and quick to judge the woman they love. Don't turn to the other man. Wait until you are sure."

How prophetic some words are, and how they linger in our ears; how they come to torture us.

Would ma have told me to wait for Pat if she had known more? I couldn't speak more fully. She would never have understood. She knew so little of the laxity of the world, it would have seemed to her incredible that Dawson could have done the thing he did unless I had encouraged him.

Answers to Radio Fans

C. D. C., Willimantic, Ct. — I know no place where burned-out vacuum tubes may be repaired.

C. A. W., Lowell.—The transformer for lighting vacuum tubes by means of A. C. house current has just been put on the market. It is not possible to state in this column where one may be purchased, but several of the larger radio stores in Boston now have them for sale. They may be used for both radio and radio frequency amplifiers.

A. E. W., Malden.—The tube you refer to may be purchased in most of the radio supply houses, but cannot be legally sold for use as a detector tube until the Fleming patents expire in November, when it may be used anywhere. The same type of tube can be used for either detection or amplification.

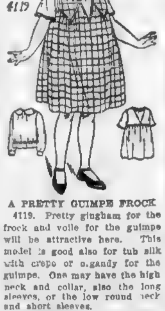
American Firm Wins

The total cost of the new radio station to be erected south of Gothenburg will be about $1,300,000, it was recently announced. The contract for its equipment was let to the Radio Corporation of America, in spite of a lower bid from a German firm. The amount of the equipment contract is $423,500, one-third of which is to be paid in cash and the balance from future receipts without interest.

DAILY DRESS PATTERN

The Boston American will mail this pattern to any address on receipt of 10 cents.

Be sure to give size when ordering. Please use care in making name and address legible. A new style book containing 500 illustrations will be sent on receipt of 10 cents. Write Pattern Dept., Boston American. 80 Summer street, Boston, 8, Mass.



A PRETTY GUIMPE FROCK

4119. Pretty gingham for the frock and voile for the guimpe will be attractive here. This model is good also for tub silk with crepe or organdy for the guimpe. One may have the high neck and collar, also the long sleeves, or the low round neck and short sleeves.

This pattern is cut in 4 sizes: 4, 6, 8 and 10 years. A 6-year size requires 1¾ yards of 32-inch material for the dress, and 1⅛ yards for the guimpe.

Corns Go

Just say Blue-jay to your druggist

The simplest way to end a corn is Blue-jay. A touch stops the pain instantly. Then the corn loosens and comes out. Made in a colorless clear liquid (one drop does it!) and in extra thin plasters. The action is the same.

BUSINESS—The Moore Container Corporation has been organized with the exclusive right to manufacture and sell all machinery and paper containers made in the United States under patents of Arlington Moore. The patents under which the Company operates are basic and carry with them all future improvements. Arlington Moore has spent more than twelve years in designing and [illegible] this class of machinery—which has been accredited by recognized authorities as representing the highest type of Amer[ican] [illegible] features not found in any other machines of this type in the world. [illegible] cylindrical, square or other shapes of containers at rates varying from 2500 to 3000 contai[ners] [illegible] of the larger types per hour. [illegible] paper cans of all shapes and sizes. [illegible] Paper tubs and firkins for packing butter, lard and similar products. [illegible]

The paper container meets a universal need; taking the place of tin, glass, and wooden receptacles. They can be used for all kinds of food products which enter into the daily life of the individual families [illegible] and are acknowledged to be far superior for commercial and domestic purposes, to those manufactured from other materials.

They are in great demand by packers and shippers and [illegible] favor on the part of distributors, wholesalers and retailers. Light in weight, durable in construction, and absolutely [illegible] they answer every requirement for the [illegible]

EARNINGS—The production, under basic patents, of these commercial [illegible] perfected paper containers for [illegible] preserving and transporting foods of all kinds, should enable the Company to [illegible] a large part of the paper container [illegible]

The Company will also sell or lease machines to large pac[kers] [illegible] of paper containers would be too large to be economically delivered and royalties charged on the number of containers produced [illegible] these machines.

Besides the income derived from the sale of machines and [illegible] of paper containers, based upon a minimum production of 15 [illegible] rapidly as possible [illegible] practically unlimited, and their use will require replacement as rapidly as their contents are consumed. [illegible] to take many times the number which we can supply within the next few years.

PURPOSE OF ISSUE—The proceeds of the Preferred Stock now being sold will be used to build machinery, equip a plant, and [illegible] the patents and processes of Arlington Moore.

DIVIDENDS—The Preferred Stock is entitled to 8 per cent. cumulative dividends, payable semi-annually, April 15 and October [15] [illegible] preferred as to dividends and assets.

CONVERSION AND REDEMPTION FEATURES—The Preferred Stock is convertible at option of the holder into common stock [illegible] share for share. The Company has the right of redemption after October 15, 1924, at $110.00 per share [illegible] 60 days' notice.

PROTECTIVE FEATURES—While any Preferred Stock remains outstanding the Company shall not, unless authorized by the [illegible] of the Preferred Stock then outstanding:

1. Create any mortgage, pledge, or lien upon any of its property, or transfer any of its property as security, provided, however that this provision shall not apply to purchase money mortgages [illegible] to be acquired for corporate purposes, or to ex[isting] mortgages upon real estate so acquired.

2. Issue or guarantee any bonds [illegible] evidence of indebtedness maturing later than one year from the date thereof, [illegible] for moneys borrowed [illegible] later than one year from the incurring thereof, except bonds, notes or other [illegible] indebtedness secured by purchase money mortgages or mortgages given to extend or refund such mortgages.

3. Authorize or issue additional preferred stock in excess of $500,000 par amount.

4. Authorize or issue any other class of stock on a parity with, or having priority over the Preferred Stock, in respect to [illegible] the sinking fund applicable thereto, or payments in liquidation or dissolution.

SINKING FUND—A sinking fund is provided for the gradual redemption of Preferred Stock by the application of 15 per [cent] of net earnings for the preceding calendar year commencing April 1, 1922, after payment of Preferred dividends. Purchases of the Preferred Stock are to be made in the open market at $110.00 per share, or less, or otherwise purchased by call at $110.00.

BEACON STREET SALES.

Mrs. Ruth P. Bailey, wife of Dr. Walter P. Bailey, has transferred to Mrs. Eleanor Fabyan Frothingham, wife of Theodore Frothingham, for improvement and occupancy, the estate at No. 269 Beacon street, between Exeter and Dartmouth streets, having a tax value of $25,000. It consists of a five-story and basement brick house and 2,184 feet of land. The assessed value of the land is $12,000. The office of T. Dennie Boardman, Reginald and R. deB. Boardman negotiated the transaction.

Deeds passed today in the sale of the property at No. 490 Beacon street by Sarah F. Smith to Frederick L. McGowan. This property consists of a five-story brick house and 3,508 feet of land, all assessed on a total of $43,000. It is situated near Massachusetts avenue and is next to the Mt. Vernon Congregational Church. Meredith & Grew were the brokers.

The two-family frame dwelling with 3,640 square feet of land, located at No. 15 Kingsboro park, Jamaica Plain, has been sold by Charles G. Whiting to Walter J. Croft and another, who buy for investment. The land is taxed at $1,300. The house, being new, is unassessed. The office of E. C. Nickerson of No. 401 Centre street, Jamaica Plain, negotiated the sale.

The office of E. C. Nickerson also was the broker in the sale of the new two family dwelling at 18 Kingsboro park, Jamaica Plain, to Edwin Schmuck, who buys for occupancy. This property contains 3525 square feet of land assessed at $1,200. The house has just been constructed and as yet is unassessed. Charles G. Whiting gave title.

IN ROSLINDALE.

Robert T. Fowler reports that he has sold for Arthur W. Mudge the property at 10 Chestnut place, Jamaica Plain, consisting of a substantial single house and 8800 square feet of land. The tax valuation is $7,500. Thomas E. H. Peirce, the purchaser, already occupies the premises.

Mr. Fowler also has sold for Eugene P. Cruff the property at 67 Congress street, Roslindale, to John T. Mulaney of Somerville, who has occupied the premises. The estate consists of a two-family frame dwelling and 6600 square feet of land. The tax valuation is $12,500.

Howard N. Curtis has sold, through Mr. Fowler, the property at 50 Broadwood street, Roslindale, consisting of a two-family house and 500 square feet of land. The tax valuation is $13,000. Lydia S. N. Gaston, of Jamaica Plain, the buyer, will occupy immediately.

The estate at No. 19 Belgrade street, Roslindale, has been sold by Mr. Fowler to Clarence H. Hefler. There are 7,000 square feet of land and a two-family house on the property. The assessment is $8,400.

ASHMONT AND MILTON.

Edward F. Cassell has purchased from Mary P. Jenkins four lots of land located on Oak avenue, Ashmont, having a total assessed valuation of $1,200.

Edward F. Cassell also has bought from David W. Shikes and Philip B. Long, two two-family houses at Nos. 14-16 and 18-20 Wrentham street, Dorchester, each house having 3,000 square feet of land and an assessed valuation of $5,500, and has purchased from Maurice I. Himel the property at No. 14 Newbern avenue, Medford, consisting of a two-family and 3,200 square feet of land, assessed at $4,800.

Mississippi River Power Co.

To P. W. P., Weymouth.—Mississippi River Power Co. is largely a New England-owned public utility, whose earnings have shown a most gratifying increase since the first of the year. Incorporated in 1910, this company, as in the case of most public utilities of this nature, has shown a pretty consistent increase in gross receipts, but the high cost of labor and capital, especially during the war period, operated against this, as it did against other public utilities, with the result that it has not, at all times, shown a commensurate increase in net earnings, so that it was not until a little more than a year ago that it was able to inaugurate dividends on its preferred stock. The accumulation of dividends on this issue was, however, satisfied by the declaration of a 37½ per cent. preferred stock dividend, so that all earnings above the current dividend requirements on the preferred are now applicable to the common shares.

Kansas City Southern.

To R. F. V., Winchester.—It is likely Kansas City Southern earnings on common for 1922 will be around $4 a share, against $3.62 earned in 1921, only three cents a share in 1920 and a deficit of $689,000 in 1919. In 1918 the road earned 58 cents a share for the common, and in 1917 net was equal to $5.95 a share on the $29,959,900 common stock outstanding.

Kansas City Southern transportation expenses are still taking a rather large proportion of gross revenues, but there is every reason for believing that with increased gross revenues in the latter months of 1922 transportation ratio will be cut materially. Maintenance charges are reasonably low, although they have run higher than ratio for first half of 1921.

Chicago & Eastern Illinois.

To C. E., Winthrop—Chicago & Eastern Illinois Railroad, which on December 31, 1921, emerged from a receivership dating back to 1913, ended its corporate existence with further strides toward recovering the desired earning power during 1921. The annual statement, as sent out to stockholders, shows a balance available for dividends of $2,116,700, equal to 9.59 per cent. on the $22,051,000 new preferred stock, or 3.29 per cent. on the new common, after deducting an amount equal to 6 per cent. on the preferred. This compared with $1,504,300 net income in 1920, excluding government compensation items.

Boston Notes

AMERICAN BRASS is booked at present rate of operation to the end of the year. Margin of profit in the brass trade is understood to be much larger than six months ago.

ATCHISON'S loadings last week totaled 37,420 cars, against 31,082 a year ago. Total loadings for year to date are 1,090,280, against 983,749 last year.

ANACONDA'S wage increase of 50 cents a day, combined with cooler weather, is expected to help increase nine workers.

NEW RIVER CO. is expected to show less than 100,000 tons coal production this month, 10,000 tons less than in August, owing to car shortage.

WARREN BROS. is expected to declare initial dividend on common before end of the year.

ORPHEUM is reflecteing better earnings due to reopening of theatres which have been dark during the Summer

PERCY A. ROCKEFELLER has been elected to directorate of Anaconda Copper Mining Co., to succeed his father, Wm. Rockefeller, deceased.

Pittsburgh Coal Drops Over 10 Points on Passing of Its Common Dividend

FORBES' VIEWS ON FINANCE

—By B. C. Forbes—

Should employers be allowed to work men twelve hours a day?

Some employers, notably steel manufacturers, say "yes" and do it.

But is it right?

Oftener than once, when I have tackled men of the Judge Gary type on the twelve hour day and seven day week, the sharp reply has been: "I think nothing of working fourteen hours a day, often longer."

But that's no answer at all. It is one thing to do something we want to do and another thing to be compelled to do something. The employer who sometimes works more than fourteen hours a day can close his desk and hie himself off for recreation when the spirit moves him. He is, in large measure, his own boss. He can come and go as he chooses.

The toiler, sentenced to work twelve hours every day, would lose his job if he got the habit of throwing down his tools and going off for recreation whenever he had a mind to.

The great cry of steel manufacturers and others guilty of twelve-hour shifts has been that they could not afford to put their men on a shorter day.

The profitableness of the twelve-hour day as against an eight or nine-hour day is, however, being to a large extent exploded. Experiment after experiment has proved that men do substantially more work per hour when the work day is reduced to a reasonable length.

Does not the whole matter resolve itself into one very simple question?

Is it right?

No decent, thoughtful citizen in America can conscientiously stand up and argue that this democracy can raise the right type of citizens on a twelve-hour day and seven-day working week.

The whole trend of modern industry is towards greater and greater specialization, which means more and more restriction of the duties performed by any one worker; hence means more money. To perform a purely mechanical, monotonous operation or motion twelve hours a day, seven days a week, year after year, is enough to drive any intelligent person insane.

* * *

Capitalists must get this into their heads—the more machine-like they make the work of their toilers, the greater becomes the need for shortening working hours.

No corporation can turn out the right kind of men on twelve hour shifts and seven day weeks.

Therefore, why should any corporation be legally permitted to turn out the wrong kind of men, the wrong kind of citizens?

The development of the right kind of men, the right kind of a nation, is more important than the development of the iron and steel or any other industry at the cost of men's bodies and souls.

Is not this the long and the short of it?

(Copyright, 1922, by B. C. Forbes.)

32-POINT JUMP IN ATLANTIC REFINING

Weakness again featured transactions on the New York Stock Exchange, with a number of issues as outstanding exceptions. Money renewed at 4½ per cent.

Pittsburgh Coal, on announcement of passing of its quarterly common dividend of 1½, shot down more than 10 points. A 32-point advance in Atlantic Refining at 1202 was achieved.

The selling was fairly active in the afternoon. Declines of 1 to 3 points came out in St. Paul, New York Central, Rock Island, Studebaker, American Woolen, Beth Steel B, Canadian Pacific, New Haven, Lackawanna, Gulf States Steel, Lehigh Valley, Retail Stores, Republic Steel, Norfolk & Western, U. S. Steel, Western Union, General Electric, Northern Pacific, Reading, Southern Pacific and Union Pacific.

Highs for the year appeared in American Radiator, up 3¼ at 124¾; Standard Oil of New Jersey, which passed the 200 mark, and Owens Bottle, up 1¼ at 42⅞.

Crucible receded 4½ at 84½.

Prices Go Lower in Boston Market

Prices went lower on the Boston Stock Exchange. There were recessions of 1 to 2 points in Island Creek Coal, United Fruit, Boston & Maine Class B, General Electric, Mergenthaler and Eastern Steamship.

International Cement yielded 3½. Amoskeag advanced a point and U. S. Smelting made the day's best gain, up 1⅝ at 42⅞.

Standard Oils Are Big Curb Features

Vigorous and persistent buying that has forced the Standard Oil issues as a group into prominence on the New York Stock Exchange, as well as on the Curb Exchange, became even more vigorous on the New York Curb.

Buying orders came into Standard Oil of Indiana in large volume, forcing that stock up from 119⅝ to 120⅝, over 20,000 shares changing hands in the first half of the day. Standard Oil of New York, which closed at 54 Tuesday, sold as high as 550 and then reacted to 536.

Vacuum Oil was traded in at 526 to 530. Ohio Oil made a gain of 8 points, to 315, in the early trading.

LIBERTYS SUFFER IN BOND MARKET DROPS

Foreign bonds and Libertys suffered in the setback of the New York bond market. Weakness in Libertys, which declined 18 to 32 points, was attributed in some quarters to the uncertainty regarding the government's interest rate on the forthcoming loan to refund short term obligations maturing before the end of the year.

SHEET-TUBE MERGER PARLEY BREAKS OFF

Negotiations for the merger of the Youngstown Sheet & Tube Company and the Brier Hill Steel Company have been broken off, it is announced in statements by both companies.

BUSINESS—The Moore Container Corporation has beenorganized with the exclusive right to manufacture and sell all machinery and paper containers made in the United States under patents of Arlington Moore. The patents under which the Company operates are basic and carry with them all future improvements. Arlington Moore has spent more than twelve years in designing and perfecting this class of machinery,—which has been accredited by recognized authorities as representing "the highest type of American ingenuity,"—containing essential and distinctive features not found in any other machines of this type in the world.

The machines will manufacture cylindrical, square, or other shapes of containers at rates varying from 2500 to 3000 containers of the smaller types, and from 1000 to 3000 of the larger types, per hour.

Sanitary and non-refillable paper milk bottles.
Paper tubs and firkins for packing butter, lard and similar products.
Paper drinking cups for hot and cold liquids.
Durable paper pie plates and dishes.

The paper container meets a universal need; taking the place of tin, glass, and wooden receptacles. They can be used for all kinds of food products which enter into the daily life of the individual families throughout the country, and are acknowledged to be far superior for commercial and domestic purposes, to those manufactured from other materials.

They are in great demand by packers and shippers and meet with decided favor on the part of distributors, wholesalers and retailers. Light in weight, durable in construction, and absolutely sanitary, they answer every requirement for the ideal container.

EARNINGS—The production, under basic patents, of these commercially and mechanically perfected paper containers for packing, preserving and transporting foods of all kinds, should enable the Company to obtain a large part of the paper container business of the country.

The Company will also sell or lease machines to large packers, whose requirements of paper containers would be too large to be economically delivered and royalties charged on the number of containers produced from these machines.

Besides the income derived from the sale of machines and royalties, the Company's earnings from the manufacture and sale of paper containers, based upon a minimum production of 150,000 daily, of varying types, will amount to about $1,500,000, with a net profit of over $500,000 per annum. It is the intention of the Company to expand its manufacturing capacity as rapidly as possible, erecting plants in various centers and eventually producing millions daily. The demand for these containers is practically unlimited, and their use will require replacement as rapidly as their contents are consumed. One New England distributor offers to take many times the number which we can supply within the next few years.

PURPOSE OF ISSUE—The proceeds of the Preferred Stock now being sold will be used to build machinery, equip a plant, and manufacture containers. Present conditions enable the Company to have machines built by outside concerns to greater advantage than to attempt to build a plant and equip itself for that purpose.

The Preferred Stock is sold for Treasury Purposes only; to build machinery for rental to the larger users of paper containers on a royalty basis and to manufacture and sell all paper products made under the patents and process of Arlington Moore.

DIVIDENDS—The Preferred Stock is entitled to 8 per cent, cumulative dividends, payable semi-annually, April 15 and October 15. The stock is preferred as to dividends and assets.

CONVERSION AND REDEMPTION FEATURES—The Preferred Stock is convertible at option of the holder into common stock of the Company, share for share. The Company has the right of redemption after October 15, 1924, at $110.00 per share on any dividend date upon 60 days' notice.

PROTECTIVE FEATURES—While any Preferred Stock remains outstanding, the Company shall not, unless authorized by the holders of a majority of the Preferred Stock then outstanding:

1. Create any mortgage, pledge, or lien on or upon any of its property, or transfer any of its property as security; provided, however, that this provision shall not apply to purchase money mortgages of real estate to be acquired for corporate purposes, or to existing mortgages upon real estate so acquired.
2. Issue or guarantee any bonds, notes or other evidence of indebtedness maturing later than one year from the date thereof, or incur any obligations for money borrowed maturing later than one year from the incurring thereof; except bonds, notes or other evidences of indebtedness secured by purchase of money mortgages, or mortgages given to extend or refund such mortgages.
3. Authorize or issue additional preferred stock in excess of $500,000.00 par amount.
4. Authorize or issue any other class of stock on a parity with, or having priority over the Preferred Stock, in respect to dividends, the sinking fund applicable thereto, or payments in liquidation or dissolution.

SINKING FUND—A sinking fund is provided for the gradual redemption of Preferred Stock by the application of 15 per cent of net earnings for the preceding calendar year, commencing April 1, 1922, after payment of Preferred dividends. Purchases of the Preferred Stock are to be made in the open market at $110.00 per share, or less, or otherwise purchased by call at $110.00.

MERGERS

—and other momentous developments that always exert a marked influence on security prices—almost inevitably accompany (or precipitate) RAGING BULL MARKETS—are generally the works of big market operators, or groups of them.

A big business deal usually has a well defined Market end—very necessary in order to provide the financial sinews—and an able operator or two in charge of the campaign.

This is often manifested not only in the fluctuations of individual issues but in at least the minor movements of the general list.

The outstanding feature of our weekly market news service just now is a series of intimate, human interest articles on sketching the careers of such men as James R. Keene, Jay Gould and others of heavy caliber in Stock Market battlings.

A study of these articles may be as profitable as any "news," in attempting to analyze the underlying reasons for market happenings—although Redmond's Financial Weekly, in which "STOCK MARKET OPERATORS" is appearing, also contains a broad selection of the latest, more significant "NEWS" on active issues.

BEACON STREET SALES.

Mrs. Ruth P. Bailey, wife of Dr. Walter P. Bailey, has transferred to Mrs. Eleanor Fabyan Frothingham, wife of Theodore Frothingham, for improvement and occupancy, the estate at No. 269 Beacon street, between Exeter and Dartmouth streets, having a tax value of $25,000. It consists of a five-story and basement brick house and 2,184 feet of land. The assessed value of the land is $12,000. The office of T. Dennie Boardman, Reginald and R. deB. Boardman negotiated the transaction.

Deeds passed today in the sale of the property at No. 490 Beacon street by Sarah F. Smith to Frederick L. McGowan. This property consists of a five-story brick house and 3,508 feet of land, all assessed on a total of $43,000. It is situated near Massachusetts avenue and is next to the Mt. Vernon Congregational Church. Meredith & Grew were the brokers.

The two-family frame dwelling with 3,640 square feet of land, located at No. 15 Kingsboro park, Jamaica Plain, has been sold by Charles G. Whiting to Walter J. Croft and another, who buy for investment. The land is taxed at $1,300. The house, being new, is unassessed. The office of E. C. Nickerson of No. 401 Centre street, Jamaica Plain, negotiated the sale.

The office of E. C. Nickerson also was the broker in the sale of the new two family dwelling at 13 Kingsboro park, Jamaica Plain, to Edwin Schmuck, who buys for occupancy. This property contains 3525 square feet of land assessed at $1,200. The house has just been constructed and as yet is unassessed. Charles G. Whiting gave title.

IN ROSLINDALE.

Robert T. Fowler reports that he has sold for Arthur W. Mudge the property at 10 Chestnut place, Jamaica Plain, consisting of a substantial single house and 8800 square feet of land. The tax valuation is $7,500. Thomas E. H. Peirce, the purchaser, already occupies the premises.

Mr. Fowler also has sold for Eugene P. Cruff the property at 67 Congress street, Roslindale, to John T. Mulaney of Somerville, who has occupied the premises. The estate consists of a two-family frame dwelling and 6600 square feet of land. The tax valuation is $12,500.

Howard N. Curtis has sold, through Mr. Fowler, the property at 50 Broadwood street, Roslindale, consisting of a two-family house and 500 square feet of land. The tax valuation is $13,000. Lydia S. N. Gaston, of Jamaica Plain, the buyer, will occupy immediately.

The estate at No. 19 Belgrade street, Roslindale, has been sold by Mr. Fowler to Clarence H. Hefler. There are 7,000 square feet of land and a two-family house on the property. The assessment is $8,400.

ASHMONT AND MILTON.

Edward F. Cassell has purchased from Mary P. Jenkins four lots of land located on Oak avenue, Ashmont, having a total assessed valuation of $1,200.

Edward F. Cassell also has bought from David W. Shikes and Philip B. Long, two two-family houses at Nos. 14-16 and 18-20 Wrentham street, Dorchester, each house having 3,000 square feet of land and an assessed valuation of $5,500, and has purchased from Maurice I. Himel the property at No. 14 Newbern avenue, Medford, consisting of a two-family and 3,200 square feet of land, assessed at $4,800.

Mississippi River Power Co.

To P. W. P., Weymouth.—Mississippi River Power Co. is largely a New England-owned public utility, whose earnings have shown a most gratifying increase since the first of the year. Incorporated in 1910, this company, as in the case of most public utilities of this nature, has shown a pretty consistent increase in gross receipts, but the high cost of labor and capital, especially during the war period, operated against this, as it did against other public utilities, with the result that it has not, at all times, shown a commensurate increase in net earnings, so that it was not until a little more than a year ago that it was able to inaugurate dividends on its preferred stock. The accumulation of dividends on this issue was, however, satisfied by the declaration of a 37½ per cent. preferred stock dividend, so that all earnings above the current dividend requirements on the preferred are now applicable to the common shares.

Kansas City Southern.

To R. F. V., Winchester.—It is likely Kansas City Southern earnings on common for 1922 will be around $4 a share, against $3.62 earned in 1921, only three cents a share in 1920 and a deficit of $680,000 in 1919. In 1918 the road earned 58 cents a share for the common, and in 1917 net was equal to $5.95 a share on the $29,959,900 common stock outstanding.

Kansas City Southern transportation expenses are still taking a rather large proportion of gross revenues, but there is every reason for believing that with increased gross revenues in the latter months of 1922 transportation ratio will be cut materially. Maintenance charges are reasonably low, although they have run higher than ratio for first half of 1921.

Chicago & Eastern Illinois.

To C. E., Winthrop—Chicago & Eastern Illinois Railroad, which on December 31, 1921, emerged from a receivership dating back to 1913, ended its corporate existence with further strides toward recovering the desired earning power during 1921. The annual statement, as sent out to stockholders, shows a balance available for dividends of $2,116,700, equal to 9.59 per cent. on the $22,051,000 new preferred stock, or 3.29 per cent. on the new common, after deducting an amount equal to 6 per cent. on the preferred. This compared with $1,504,300 net income in 1920, excluding government compensation items.

Boston Notes

AMERICAN BRASS is booked at present rate of operation to the end of the year. Margin of profit in the brass trade is understood to be much larger than six months ago.

ANACONDA'S wage increase of 50 cents a day, combined with cooler weather, is expected to help increase mine workers.

NEW RIVER CO. is expected to show less than 100,000 tons coal production this month, 10,000 tons less than in August, owing to car shortage.

WARREN BROS. is expected to declare initial dividend on common before end of the year.

ORPHEUM is reflecteing better earnings due to reopening of theatres which have been dark during the Summer

PERCY A. ROCKEFELLER has been elected to directorate of Anaconda Copper Mining Co., to succeed his father, Wm. Rockefeller, deceased.

Samuel Adams, Patriot

In Many Ways He Made the Greatest Contribution of All Massachusetts Men to the Cause of Liberty

Today is the 200th anniversary of the birth of Samuel Adams. We are making an effort to celebrate it adequately. Nothing could be more appropriate than the very greatest efforts which we could make to call public attention to the life of Samuel Adams. In many ways he made the greatest contribution of all Massachusetts patriots to the cause of liberty. In many ways he was the greatest pioneer; the man with the greatest intellectual fortitude.

Like Thomas Jefferson in the South, he was in favor of liberty as an unalloyed principle; his sacrifices were made without the taint or admixture of material consideration. Whatever truth there may be in the plaint that our revolution had its origin and its chief propelling motive in economic conditions, that could not be said of Samuel Adams.

We deny that the revolution was chiefly an economic revolution. We believe that this attempt to strike down the ideality of the revolution and destroy the beautiful pictures of sacrifices by the revolutionary leaders, paintable for our children's inspiration, is nothing but British propaganda, which would have us believe that Great Britain violated no principles; but came to clash with us through the clash of uncontrollable economic laws. Nothing is farther from the truth.

This contention of the British propagandists is only true in the sense that a large portion of humanity feel the urge of economic conditions in their decisions. But it is thus only that we excuse the Tory; he followed his interests under the British flag. That human nature is selfish does not destroy the principle that we should not steal, or bear false witness against our neighbor, or covet anything that is our neighbor's.

The revolution was fought not on account of an unusual concatenation of economic circumstances, but on account of circumstances under which Great Britain has constantly acted when they occur; circumstances which have been besetting Ireland for 700 years and have led to the spoliation of that unfortunate country; circumstances which have led to the still more terrible spoliation of India for 200 years, in the course of which every depravity to which human nature can descend has been exhibited by India's British oppressors.

But it must be said that the difference between Samuel Adams and some of his comrades during the revolution was that Adams saw only the principle, while perhaps it may be true that some of the others saw both the principle and the material gain. Adams would have been a revolutionist on principle if material gain were all the other way.

We wonder what he would say if he knew the new version of the revolution which the friends of his British enemies are attempting to teach our school children. We really do not wonder what he would think, but we wonder how he would express his thoughts.

His Mental Eye Undimmed

City Councillor Watson Sees Clearly That Our Best Interests Require Public Operation of Public Utilities

Somebody may have blackened "Jerry" Watson's physical eye, but no one has yet blackened his mental eye so that he cannot see that the best interests of this State and country require public operation of our public utilities, like our gas, electric light, railroads, street railways, telephone and telegraph companies. Mr. Watson at his own expense in time and money was in Springfield to advocate the putting of a plank for public ownership and operation into the Democratic platform. He was there to do a duty which underneath the table a great many gentlemen connected with the Democratic party are opposed to secretly.

Mr. Watson is one of the leaders in the City Council in behalf of public ownership and operation of our lighting utilities. He never faltered when his mental eye had the perspicacity to see that one of the most important and longest steps forward is the taking and operating by the public, as a strictly public function, the supplying of the people with transportation, light, intelligence, power and heat.

There has yet been no blow from the physical fist on Mr. Watson's physical eye which could put out the light shining in his mind which reveals the truth concerning these paramount issues.

If his party allows ambitious and unenlightened leaders to stand between it and the light and to cast their shadows over the party conscience and intelligence and obscure the path of party progress, it is not Mr. Watson's fault we verily believe.

Former Justice of the Supreme Court John H. Clarke says he isn't a candidate for President and will work to get the United States into the League of Nations.

The second announcement proves the wisdom of the former. Just how the former Supreme Court justice intends "to influence public opinion for the League of Nations" isn't exactly clear.

It doesn't matter much, for you might as well try to bring back the hansom cab and get rid of the taxi as to put this country officially into European complications.

Poise

We call public attention to the manliness and dignity and the perfect poise with which Honorable Joseph Walker conducted himself at the Republican Convention last Saturday when he was trying to get the assembled Republicans to recognize that the day demanded something more than platitudes from the Republican party, when he was trying to get them to adopt resolutions that meant something, and when he was being jeered down by men and women who know nothing about free speech or political decency anywhere.

Mr. Walker came out of the convention a bigger man than he went in. Nothing disturbed his calmness. With every provocation to blaze up, he kept himself in perfect control. In manner and even in the difficult management of his voice, he exhibited perfect self-control.

We predict that this Republican Convention will haunt the Republicans from now till election day.

Friendly Farmers

Editor Boston American:

Mr. Coote is here again, this time to help the Protestants of South Ireland. Let me say the Protestants of South Ireland are taken care of by their kind neighbors, the Catholics of South Ireland. There is no trouble in South Ireland between Catholics and Protestants. I know, for example, the two farmers next to where I was visiting this Summer. A Protestant by the name of George Daunt and a Catholic by the name of David Kenealy sent milk to Cork City every day. One week Mr. Daunt, the Protestant, will call at Mr. Kenealy's farm and take both deliveries. Mr. Kenealy delivers both the following week. This does not look like hatred between Catholic and Protestant.

British Intrigues

Editor Boston American:

Ex-Ambassador Strauss no doubt is pro-English, the same as Wilson and Taft. The whole trouble of all the European wars is, the secret, dirty, underhanded intrigues of Great Britain. She has the Rock of Gibraltar, guarding the Straits, and she robbed Spain of it. Now she wants the Dardanelles. She has been the dictator in all this World War. She has done all the grabbing of all German territory in Africa; she had more of the German ships than any other nation, which is characteristic of John Bull the English; she is doing her best to beat the U. S. out of the war debt. Great Britain tried to divide the U. S.; result, Civil War—the Alabama Claims proved it. She has India and Ireland divided in itself, and she remains master of the situation.

Have you forgotten the Venezuela affair, Mr. Strauss? When gold was discovered there in that little republic, Great Britain claimed it was in her territory. President Cleveland, a true patriot, told John Bull to keep his hands off.

To Relieve Traffic

Editor Boston American:

By way of discussion, on a recent visit to New York city I noticed the absence of motor trucks in the city proper. Upon inquiring, I was informed that this class of vehicles was not permitted to operate throughout the city during certain hours of the day.

The thought that occurred to my mind was that if this condition was good enough for New York to help relieve traffic there, why could it not work out to our mutual advantage.

First you find motor trucks lined up in the city, tying up traffic; secondly you find trucks backed up to merchants' stores, not only obstructing passage for pedestrians, but the merchant himself losing out on the passer-by possibility of these same people looking into his window. Then again you will find quite often boxes left on the sidewalk by trucks and in this way endangering wearing apparel. Can't we do something about relieving this situation? A READER.

Evolution

Editor Boston American:

The editor of the Boston American subscribes to a very large order when it asks its readers to accept the Darwinian theory as a scientific fact. If evolution is positive, why do noted men go to remote parts of the world looking for the missing link? Within a year Professor Robeson of England, Prince Korzybski of Poland and Dr. Harding of America claimed it was a fallacy. How can it be asserted how man originated when it is a matter of controversy in the scientific world?

Sacco-Vanzetti

Editor Boston American:

I have read in your paper the statement of Lola Andrews and your editorial upon the Sacco-Vanzetti prosecution. I was with Mrs. Andrews on the occasion she testified about and know that her testimony was not true. I was not called by the prosecution, but voluntarily contradicted her story on the stand. Therefore, if those men were convicted on Mrs. Andrews' testimony, I believe they should have a new trial.

Erin's Rights

Editor Boston American:

I have noticed in your columns some very erratic letters and some very bigoted and prejudiced ones, and in this twentieth century A. D. it does seem that civilization and humanity has not progressed very far upwards. I must state here in defence of my own nationality (Irish) and in defence of the principles of true Americanism, that of the great George Washington, Father of Our Country, with Hancock, Jefferson, Madison, Lincoln, Franklin, Patrick Henry, the Carrolls of Carrollton, and all true-blooded Americans, both past and present, that the seed of tyranny has again been sown in this Republic, that after 145 years the Georgian Kings have again gained a strong foothold on our beloved America and have subverted our most patriotic principles and nearly overwhelmed our grand structure of republican institutions.

I say we have the right to be insistent and to demand that England let Ireland go and set up her own free Republic, her own "self-determination," and apply it to all small nations if we can. It is a blow at our Republic when Imperial England thwarts Ireland or any other Republic from functioning. The so-called Free State offered to Irishmen is a farce, a mockery, a delusion and a snare. So, Irishmen, beware!

PATRICK F. SHEEHAN.

Wearing the Union Jack

Editor Boston American:

I wish to draw attention to the number of Canadians in Boston wearing a button with the Union Jack of England thereon. If these people love this emblem of tyranny so much, why don't they stay in the country where that flag is so devoutedly loved? The Star Spangled Flag of these United States should be the only emblem worn here in this country. People earning a livelihood here under its folds should be compelled to show no other emblem, especially as a daily exhibit in their coat lapels.

AN UNHYPHENATED AMERICAN.

College—Why Not?

Editor Boston American:

In several late numbers of the daily newspapers items have appeared which were written by college professors and college presidents. The general trend of that in these items seems to disfavor college education for the average man. One of these "lectures" has interested me so much that I think someone from the "average man class" should be heard from.

The particular statement in which I am interested was written by a college president. He writes: "Reserve the opportunities of colleges to the aristocracy of brains—men intellectually eager and alert." I would like to know just what is meant by this statement. I realize that we cannot all be as bright as some men think they are, but we can at least hold an ideal and improve our minds and bodies by striving for a higher goal.

We all have the right to better ourselves. Who can pass judgment on us and be given the power to say, "You shall not train your mind further"?

If This Is Your Birthday

You Are LUCKY

YOURS is the resolute way of life if today is the anniversary of your birth, for woe betide him that tries to obstruct you. Whether your task be easy or difficult, you attack with vigorous doggedness and you invariably succeed, never brilliantly, but always surely.

Today is one of hazardous outlook for all business, especially those involving the transfer of chemicals and minerals.

Your ensuing year will be unusually enjoyable. You will have some trouble keeping yourself at your present occupation, but you should not change for the present.

ARE YOU THINKING OF QUITTING A SALARY JOB FOR BUSINESS?

If you are fearful about giving up your steady job to engage in some line of work for yourself, don't make the change.

If you doubt your ability to make good, the chances are you will fail.

Stick to your salaried job till you feel confident you can run a business of your own.

It is better never to branch out for yourself than to lose all you have saved and then have to go bak into the employe class.

Of course, there is no such thing as certain, sure success in any business undertaking.

Business presents an element of chance, and unless you are willing to take a chance and provide for it, you would better stay out of business.

In other words, if you think of going into business for yourself, give the matter close study, and go only after studying out practical plans for success.

If you have no practical plan built along sensible business principles, and yet have faith in your personal ability, stick to the Saturday night pay envelope.

If you have no plan worked out, the chances are you would have to come back to it anyway.

SEEN AND HEARD

SATURDAY night shoppers were thrown into confusion by the eagerness of the Elevated and other owners of street clocks to get back to standard time. Instead of waiting until 2 o'clock Sunday morning, the Elevated and many of the stores and banks turned their street clocks back early Saturday night.

Old-time residents of Boston who have long since moved away always make it a point to visit the exclusive Louisburg square and immediate vicinity when they return to their favorite haunts. The ancient appearance of this district has been retained up to this day, even to the old-time brass and silver knockers and the handsomely carved, heavy front doors.

One of the oldest issues of a newspaper in existence today is a copy of a New York daily which reposes in the window of a store on Main street, Charlestown. It is dated April 15, 1865, and its entire first page is devoted in the assassination of Abraham Lincoln. It is about the size of a present day tabloid.

During the past few weeks south-bound birds have frequently shipped themselves as passengers on United Fruit Company steamers, it is stated at the Boston offices. The birds, on their annual migration for warmer climes, fly about the vessels, alight on the decks and even enter the saloons if offered crumbs by friendly passengers. When near Florida they fly ashore.

VICE-PRESIDENT CALVIN COOLIDGE still has that same old propensity for speaking a long time. He demonstrated this fact last Saturday at the Republican State Convention when he talked for about an hour and a half.

Old Colony Gas Company, covering Weymouth and the Braintrees, may set a unique example in Massachusetts by lowering rates. VICE-PRESIDENT E. M. FARNSWORTH, JR., says: "Each year more and more of our consumers continue to do their cooking and water heating with gas throughout the Winter, and it is hoped this year so many will do this that we can shortly make another reduction in the price of gas."

Tenean street is becoming the favorite training grounds for amateur autoists in the Dorchester district. During the late afternoon and evening the highway is well filled with near drivers and their teachers.

GARRETT P. SERVISS ON SCIENTIFIC PROOF

By Garrett P. Serviss.

SOME time ago I remarked, in an article touching on spiritualism, that science does not regard testimony as proof. One of my correspondents finds it a hard statement, and would like to have it explained. In his opinion the appearance of the spirit of a deceased person may be PROVED by the testimony of trustworthy persons who say they saw it.

In my reply I repeat that in the court of science mere testimony, however "honest," is not competent to establish a new scientific fact. Such testimony, of course, may be accepted as evidence that a certain phenomenon appeared to the witnesses, but the interpretation that they put upon the strange appearance is another thing, and cannot be accepted as determining the real nature of the phenomenon until the latter is subjected to an entirely different kind of a test.

Lawyers are apt to think that their rules and ways of establishing facts are unrivalled. But for the reason that legal evidence is largely presented in the form of testimony of witnesses, if for no other reason, the proofs that generally pass muster in a court of law must be pronounced inferior to those invariably demanded for the settlement of a question in science.

In science the facts must speak for themselves, and the human element in the evidence is reduced to the minimum possible. Simple testimony from a competent observer may suffice to establish the existence of an isolated scientific fact, provided that the nature of the fact is well known to science. But, science having no other evidence already of the existence of ghosts, would not accept the testimony of a hundred of the most honest-hearted witnesses in the world affirming that they had seen and talked with a ghost. It would say to them: "You must furnish other proof than your mere belief of the nature of what you saw."

So those who complain because scientific men do not set out to investigate spiritism should take notice of the severity of the tests to which their favorite hypothesis will be subjected if the real leaders of science ever do conclude that it is worth overhauling.

I happen to have before me now a simple illustration of the difference between testimony and proof, and of the cause of the lack of standing of the former in a scientific tribunal. I am writing in the North Carolina mountains, near where Daniel Boone went through to open the westward march of the world's newest empire, where at least eight great peaks exceed the height of New England's proud crown, Mount Washington, and where a little gold has occasionally been found glittering in the rocks and sands of the cliffs and gorges.

A few small but beautiful specimens of such gold have been shown to me. A judge, who is a visitor here, said to me: "Do you think that this is evidence that there is gold in the North Carolina mountains?"

"Well," I replied, "the gold is certainly genuine, and that is the scientific evidence in the case. The rest is testimony, which is purely a legal matter, and therefore it is for you to pass upon it."

However, in this particular case science could, up to a certain point, aid the legal mind in reaching a conclusion. The subject of the testimony, gold, is well known to exist, so that the question, as far as science is concerned, narrows itself down to proof that gold occurs in the rocks of this particular region.

—Medbury Says—

The Average Woman Has to Break a Few Plates Over Her Husband's Head Before He Realizes He's Not Happy

Every first-class garage has a man who looks over your automobile and tells you what's the matter with it, but there is a new firm in business now called the "matrimonial trouble shooters."

If you and your wife aren't getting along this firm sends one of their representatives to live with you for a while to find out what's wrong. The average "trouble shooter" usually spends three or four days at your home, most of them can't stand it any longer than that.

After he hears you call each other names and fight every minute you're together, he comes to the conclusion that you're not suited to one another.

You have to pay him fifty bucks to have him tell you you're not good enough for your wife when her mother would be glad to do it for nothing.

He has to see you darn near kill each other before he makes up his mind that you aren't getting along.

He can tell you how to be happy with your wife, but he has to hire a guy to tell him how to get along with his.

Of course, some families don't know when they're not congenial.

The average woman has to break a few plates over her husband's head and blacken his eyes before he realizes that he's not happy. He figures that as long as she doesn't kill him he should be contented.

And if she's good to him he's suspicious. A woman has to fight her husband ever so often or he'll think she's neglecting him.

These "trouble shooters" visit two or three families every week, and no wonder so many of them become fight fans.

They make notes in their diary of every fight you have, only they don't call them diaries, they call them scrapbooks.

Very few of these "trouble shooters" are married. They're too busy with other people's quarrels, they're so busy watching you and your wife scrap that they wouldn't have any time to go home and fight.

One of these birds was married and he was kept so busy with the battles of strangers that he used to phone for his wife to meet him at the office and they'd do their scrapping downtown.

He had so much business to attend to that he and his wife were forced to fight during his lunch hour.

The "trouble shooters" are located in all large cities, so if you and your wife are getting along happily you'd better have one of these guys come and visit you and find out why.
